Iran strikes Kurdish groups in Iraq as US-backed fighters ready for war

Fears of new front as Kurdish fighters prepare cross-border move against Tehran

TEHRAN

FRESH blasts were reported in Tehran as the widening West Asia war drew in new actors, with Iran striking Kurdish groups based in northern Iraq and warning "separatist" forces against joining the conflict. The strikes came amid reports Kurdish Iranian dissident fighters were preparing to enter the war with potential US backing, raising fears of a new front opening against Tehran and further expanding the regional conflict.

The Kurdish groups are widely seen as the most well-organised segment of the fragmented Iranian opposition and are believed to have thousands of trained fighters. Their entry into the war could pose a significant challenge to the embattled authorities in Tehran and could also risk pulling Iraq further into the conflict.

Khalil Nadiri, an official with the Kurdistan Freedom Party, or PAK, based in northern Iraq's semi-autonomous Kurdish region, said Wednesday that some of their forces had moved to areas near the Iranian border in Sulaymaniyah province and were on standby. He said Kurdish opposition group leaders had been contacted by US officials regarding a potential operation, without giving more details.

Asked about reports that the Trump administration was considering arming Iranian Kurdish groups, Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth told reporters Wednesday: "None of our objectives are premised on the support or the arming of any particular force. So, what other entities may be doing, we're aware of, but our objectives aren't centered on that."

WAR WATCH

Before the US and Israel attacked Iran on Saturday, triggering a new war in the Middle East, the PAK had claimed attacks on the paramilitary Revolutionary Guard in retaliation for Tehran's violent crackdown on protests. But an official with the group said it had not sent forces from Iraq into Iran.

If the Iranian and Iraqi Kurdish groups were to join the war, it would be the first entry of a significant ground force into the battle.

An official with Komala, another of the Kurdish Iranian groups, said on Wednesday that their forces are ready to cross the border within a week to 10 days and were "waiting for the grounds to be suitable." He spoke on condition of anonymity out of security concerns.

Close watch on Kurdish groups

Turkey's defence ministry on Thursday said it was "closely" following the actions of Kurdish militant groups over concerns they are being drawn into the war, reportedly by US-led efforts to destabilise Iran. AP/AFP

Iran war to cost Israel $3 billion a week, says FinMin

JERUSALEM

THE ongoing war with Iran could cost Israel an estimated NIS 9.4 billion per week under current restrictions on economic activities, the Israeli Finance Ministry has warned.

"In a letter sent to the Home Front Command chief, Maj. Gen. Shai Klapper, Finance Ministry Director General Ilan Rom asked to ease restrictions to allow for a gradual, partial reopening of businesses and workplaces as early as Thursday," the Times of Israel reported. "There is no dispute about the need to preserve a defence policy adapted to the security situation, but at the same time, shutting down the economy on a broad scale carries heavy economic costs," Rom warned.

"We need a solution that addresses both the security needs of the Home Front and the needs of the economy, after two and a half years in which the economy has been paying a heavy economic price in light of the increase in security needs and the repercussions of the war," the top Finance Ministry executive reportedly said.

Soon after Israel and the US launched their joint offensive against Iran on Saturday morning, the Israel Defence Forces' (IDF) Home Front Command issued nationwide guidelines prohibiting all gatherings, educational activities and workplaces, except for essential businesses.

The guidelines limit travel to work, encourages work from home, and has instructed educational institutions to be shut down.

On Monday, following fresh assessment amid the conflict with Iran, the Home Front Command extended nationwide restrictions until Saturday night.

Rom asked Klapper to ease Home Front Command restrictions from red to orange alert level. The Finance Ministry said current curbs cost the economy about NIS 9.4 billion a week. AP

Security personnel escort as officials carry ballot boxes to counting centre after Nepal vote in Kathmandu | AFP

60 per cent turnout in peaceful Nepal parl elections

KATHMANDU

NEPAL voted on Thursday for a new parliament in a high-stakes showdown between an entrenched old guard and a powerful youth movement, six months after deadly anti-corruption protests toppled the government. Key figures contesting for power include the Marxist former prime minister seeking a return to office, a rapper-turned-mayor bidding for the youth vote, and the newly elected leader of the powerful Nepali Congress party.

Election commission officials collected ballot boxes after voting closed, with papers taken under guard to centres before counting.

"The voting process has been concluded peacefully and enthusiastically," Chief Election Commissioner Ram Prasad Bhandari told reporters, saying turnout had been around 60 percent according to initial estimates. Some winners are expected to be published as early as Friday, but full results may take several days.

It may then take time before a government is formed if, as many analysts expect, no party wins an outright majority.

"Nepalis have been waiting for change for so long, from one system to another," said Nilanta Shakya, 60, a retired engineer, who was among the first to vote at a college in Kathmandu.

"I hope there is a meaningful change this time," she added. Voters have chosen who replaces the interim government in place since the September 2025 uprising, and parliament and scores of government buildings were torched. Youth-led protests under a loose Gen Z banner began as a demonstration against a brief social media ban, but were fed by wider grievances at corruption. Sushila Karki, the interim prime minister, said the vote was critical in "determining our future". AFP
