Naveen breaks down after seeing plight of Ganjam flood-hit people

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bhubaneswar/Berhampur

MOVED by the suffering of people in Ganjam district, leader of Opposition and former chief minister Naveen Patnaik became emotional during his visit to the cyclone Arnab-induced flood-affected areas on Saturday.

He virtually broke down as the locals recounted how the waters had swallowed their homes, crops, belongings and livelihoods. "Several cyclones have battered southern Odisha over the years but I have had never witnessed devastation of such magnitude," Naveen said as people gathered to narrate their ordeal before him.

The BJD president visited four flood-hit blocks of Sheragada, Hinjilicut, Aska and Sorada. Thousands gathered at Sheragada to greet Naveen on his arrival and draw his attention to their problems.

Several farmers carried rotten and damaged paddy plants to show him the extent of crop loss. They explained how floodwater had submerged their fields, destroyed standing crops and their livelihoods. People also apprised him of damage to houses, roads and other infrastructure caused by the cyclone and subsequent floods.

"I have witnessed the suffering of flood-affected families and farmers during my visit to four affected blocks including his own constituency Hinjilicut. People are passing through extremely difficult times and need immediate assistance. I appeal to the State government to provide adequate compensation to affected farmers and relief to flood-hit families. Their suffering should not be ignored under any circumstances," Naveen said at Sheragada.

High-rises in western Hyd stare at water crisis as reservoir levels drop

Water Board advises residents to reduce drinking water consumption by at least 20%

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hyderabad

THOUSANDS of families living in hundreds of high-rise residential towers across Hyderabad's western corridor may face mounting drinking water shortages from December as declining storage levels in the Singur and Manjeera reservoirs threaten to widen the gap between demand and supply.

The looming crisis could hit some of the city's most densely populated residential and commercial clusters, including Kokapet, Narsingi, Puppalaguda, Nanakramguda, Gachibowli, Madhapur, Hitec City, Raidurg, Khajaguda, Kondapur, Serilingampally, Kukatpally, Miyapur, Chandanagar, Nallagandla and Tellapur.

With at least 150 residential projects in these locations, comprising towers ranging from 20 to 40 floors and each housing hundreds of families, even a marginal reduction in drinking water supply could have a cascading impact on daily life.

The shortage could affect more than three lakh water connections across the western corridor between Patancheru and Narsingi, with groundwater levels declining alongside reservoir storage levels.

The Hyderabad Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Board (HMWSSB) has sounded the alarm over the deteriorating situation, estimating a potential shortfall of around 100 million gallons per day (MGD) in water supply from the Singur and Manjeera reservoirs, which cater to more than three lakh connections until the Godavari augmentation projects become operational.

At present, the supply from these sources to predominantly western parts of Hyderabad is understood to be around 85 MGD, indicating a shortfall. The situation could worsen from December this year if water consumption is not regulated.

Residents urged to reduce water use

The Water Board has accordingly advised residents, particularly those living in high-rise communities, to reduce drinking water consumption by at least 20 percent. It has also stressed the need to use treated wastewater for non-potable requirements such as construction, industrial activities, gardening and landscaping.

High-rises face a bigger challenge. At an estimated consumption of 100 litres per person per day, a household of five would require around 500 litres daily. A residential community with 2,000 occupants would need approximately two lakh litres a day, or 0.2 million litres, just to meet basic domestic requirements.

For large gated communities and skyscrapers, any disruption in piped supply could force residents' associations to depend on water tankers, adding to maintenance expenses.

The growing dependence on tankers is already evident in the Water Board's booking figures.

TN girl holds 3-year-old nephew hostage for phone

VIGNESH V @ Virudhunagar

A 14-year-old girl held her three-year-old nephew captive at knifepoint for nearly six hours near Sivakasi in Virudhunagar district, demanding a new Nothing phone so she could speak to a friend.

She released the child unharmed around 2 am on Friday, after police personnel arranged to get her the handset from a mobile phone shop. The incident came to light around 8 pm on Thursday, when the girl's family noticed her entering a room in the house. Suspecting that the three-year-old might be with her, they went looking for him and found both inside the locked room. The girl, whose parents had died, is under the care of her elder sister, brother, aunt and uncle.

When the family members asked her to open the door, she refused and held a kitchen knife to the boy's neck, demanding a new Nothing phone.

Initially, the family thought she was doing it for fun, but soon realised that she was serious. She had been using her elder sister's phone until then and wanted one of her own. When the family's attempts to persuade her failed, they alerted the police.

Police personnel, including DSP (Sivakasi) Anilkumar, rushed to the spot and tried to convince her to release the child.

However, she remained adamant about getting the phone. Police sources said she was determined to own a mobile phone so she could speak to a friend.

By then, it was around 10.30 pm, and mobile phone shops in the locality had closed. The police were also unsure whether a Nothing phone was available nearby. A team comprising family members and police personnel travelled around 15 km to Sivakasi and checked three to four large mobile phone outlets before managing to get a closed shop opened.

The police personnel explained the situation to the shopkeeper and assured him that they would return the mobile phone. The handset was then taken to the house and handed over to the girl. Even after receiving it, she opened the package and checked to ensure it was a Nothing phone.

Two more bodies recovered in 7-member murder case in B'luru

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE North division police with the help of neighbouring Tamil Nadu police recovered two more bodies from a dense forest in the Salem ghat section of Tamil Nadu, in the horrific murder of seven members of a family in the city.

With the latest recovery, the bodies of three of the seven victims have been recovered. They have been identified as Sunitha (40), wife of prime accused Indushekhar (52) and his mother-in-law Rupavathi (65). Both bodies were found in a severely decomposed state.

Meanwhile, the last rites of seven-year-old Puneeth, the youngest of all the victims, were performed by his family members at Harishchandra Ghat in Rajajinagar on Friday night. His body had been recovered from Nandi foothills.

The police officers learnt that the accused picked blood-stained jewellery from the bodies of his victims after bludgeoning them to death using a grindstone. He then washed the jewellery before selling some and pledging others. He reportedly used the money to purchase diesel for his car to transport and dispose of the bodies at different locations. He allegedly kept the remaining jewellery in his pocket.
