El Nino set to be strongest in over a century, warns UK

Head of forecasting at British Met Office says 'never seen an El Nino signal this intense'

LONDON

THIS year's El Nino weather pattern will be the biggest in over a century and could make 2027 the hottest year globally, Britain's national weather agency predicted Friday.

An El Nino weather event happens when warming sea surface temperatures in the tropical eastern Pacific trigger worldwide changes in winds, atmospheric pressure and rainfall, as well as higher global temperatures overall.

Adam Scaife, head of long-range forecasting at the weather agency, told the BBC: "We are expecting the biggest El Nino for over a century, peaking at something over three degrees — that is unheard of in modern climate records."

This means Pacific water would heat up more than 3C above the norm in the coming months. El Nino occurs when water temperatures rise at least 0.5C above the baseline. While it is part of a natural cycle, scientists agree climate change increases its impacts.

A record El Nino would be "adding to the stresses of climate change" following a summer of heatwaves across Europe, the Met Office said.

Temperatures in the Pacific region are currently running about 2.6C above a rolling 30-year average, according to the Climate Brink dashboard based on data from the US National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

"I have never seen an El Nino signal this intense in our forecasts," Scaife added, with even a 2C rise considered a "really big event". AFP

PIONEERING TREATMENT SAVES PYTHON FROM CANCER

LONDON

A UK zoo on Friday hailed curing a cancer-stricken python named after Hollywood star Jodie Foster, who became the first snake to receive an innovative treatment combining surgery and electrochemotherapy (ECT).

Chester Zoo said the 4.5m reticulated python had fully recovered after first undergoing surgery and then receiving ECT following the return of a cancerous tumour. Animals are increasingly being treated for cancers with drugs and therapies once only used on humans.

Other creatures — including a turtle and lizard — have had ECT treatment previously, according to case reports posted on medical science databases.

But Chester Zoo's veterinary team, who worked alongside University of Liverpool cancer specialists to adapt the pioneering treatment, believe it is a first for a snake. Tests confirmed a malignant tumour in her jaw, which was removed through surgery. But it then returned, prompting another surgical procedure when ECT was also deployed to target any remaining cancerous cells.

ECT combines the use of cancer drug bleomycin with a series of electrical pulses directly on the tumour site which temporarily make cancer cells more permeable, allowing the drug to enter more effectively.

DHAKA

VETERAN politician Mirza Fakhrul Islam Alamgir was on Friday sworn in as Bangladesh's President, a day after Parliament elected him as the head of the state for the next five years in the first contested poll for the post in 35 years.

Alamgir, 78, a longtime secretary general of the ruling Bangladesh Nationalist Party (BNP), was administered the oath of office by Jatiya Sangsad (Parliament) Acting Speaker Kayser Kamal at the Darbar Hall of Bangabhaban, the official office-cum-residence of the head of state.

Court orders Harry, others to pay £9.5mn to Daily Mail

LONDON

A UK court ordered Prince Harry and six others Friday to pay an initial £9.5 million ($13 million) after they lost their long-running privacy case against the publisher of British tabloid the Daily Mail.

The High Court said the prince and six other high-profile figures, who last month lost their unlawful information gathering and privacy invasion claims against Associated Newspapers Limited, must make the payment in a week.

It comes less than 48 hours after news broke that the Duke of Sussex will be relocating back to Britain with his wife Meghan and two children. AFP
