Bibi seeks to sideline Arab parties after poll deadlock

Funds allegations raise stakes as Arabs become kingmakers in Israel formation

JERUSALEM

PRIME Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's bloc on Thursday piled pressure on Arab-Israeli leaders over unproven accusations of foreign funding, in a push to neuter parties that could hold the key to forming a government after an inconclusive election.

Israeli President Isaac Herzog, who holds a largely ceremonial role, called for an investigation into allegations but cautioned against stigmatising the entire Arab-Israeli community, who voted at unprecedented rates. Israel was nearing the completion of ballot counting from Tuesday's election, the first since Hamas's October 7, 2023 attacks, with neither Netanyahu nor the opposition bloc led by former military chief Gadi Eisenkot appearing able to secure a majority.

The Netanyahu camp's accusations, denied by both Arab-majority lists, could bring new uncertainty into the electoral process at a time when the threat of a new Israeli and US attack on Iran looms over the region.

The election saw soaring participation by Arab-Israelis, descendants of Palestinians who stayed after the country's creation in 1948, as outrage boiled at calls by officials such as National Security Minister Itamar Ben Gvir to treat their community much as Israel has dealt with Palestinians in Gaza and the occupied West Bank. Following Netanyahu's accusations, Ben Gvir went so far as to encourage Israel to "immediately" order the arrests of Arab party leaders.

The Arab parties together have enough votes to take the opposition bloc over the finish line, but Eisenkot has baulked after relentless attacks by Netanyahu, who warned his right-wing Jewish base that voting for the opposition would put Arabs in power.

Supreme Court Justice Noam Sohlberg, a conservative who heads the Central Elections Committee, requested an investigation by the Shin Bet security service into allegations that the Arab grouping Raam received money from Qatar, the energy-rich Gulf powerbroker that has channels to Hamas.

"The Raamgate scandal is a political earthquake. Israel's elections have been stolen!" Netanyahu's Likud party said. Raam chief Mansour Abbas denied any "connection to the affair" and welcomed an investigation. AFP

UTJ to ditch Bibi, support Eisenkot

JERUSALEM

THE ultra-Orthodox United Torah Judaism (UTJ) party is considering supporting a government led by opposition leader Gadi Eisenkot from outside the coalition in exchange for compromises on military draft exemptions, The Times of Israel reported, citing Channel 12 news.

UTJ, which has seven seats according to the latest vote count, could refrain from voting against an Eisenkot-led government, allowing it to rely on the support of the Islamic Ra'am party, the report said.

"We won't receive anything from Netanyahu," a UTJ source was quoted as telling Channel 12.
