Rs 81 lakh property of PoK terror handler seized in J&K's Rajouri

New Delhi, Agency: Jammu and Kashmir Police has attached immovable property worth Rs 81 lakh belonging to a Pakistan-occupied Jammu and Kashmir (PoJK)-based terror handler in Rajouri district, officials told news agency Media on Friday.

The attachment was carried out by Rajouri Police on Thursday under Sections 87 and 88 of the CrPC and Sections 2 and 3 of the EIMCO Act.

The property belongs to Mohd Arshad, a resident of Khablan Thanamandi, and comprises 2 Kanals and 14 Marlas of land spread across Khasra numbers 125, 128 and 160 in the village. The action comes amid an intensified crackdown on terror networks in the region.

Gopashtami Fair at Shri Krishna Gaushala on 17th

PRABHAT HEADLINE

Udaipurwati. Like every year, this year too, the annual fair will be organized on 17 November at Shri Krishna Gaushala on Gopashtami. The puja and aarti of Gau Mata, Ved Bhagwan and Shri Krishna Bhagwan will be held at 1 pm at Shri Rao Todarmal Smriti Sansthan. After that, the Rath Yatra procession of Ved Bhagwan and Shri Krishna Bhagwan will start from there at 1 pm and reach Shri Krishna Gaushala at 3 pm. During the fair in the Gaushala premises, there will be discourses and guidance by scholars. After that, the detailed annual report of the Gaushala will also be presented. Preparations for the fair are going on in full swing. The Gaushala office bearers have appealed to the devotees to attend in maximum numbers, so that they can get the virtuous benefit of serving and worshipping Gau Mata.

Urine biomarker may offer new way to flag cancer risk in India, study suggests

New Delhi, Agency: With an estimated 15.6 lakh new cancer cases and 8.7 lakh deaths in India in 2024, a new study points to a possible way of identifying people at higher risk of developing cancer even before symptoms appear: a urine biomarker.

The research, published in Cancer Epidemiology, Biomarkers & Prevention last week, found that the profile of certain molecules in urine could help predict the risk of developing multiple cancers over five years. The study followed healthy adults enrolled in the Lifelines population cohort in the Netherlands. Researchers analysed 24-hour urine samples from all 827 participants who developed cancer within five years and a random sample of 4,609 who did not. The results were scaled to estimate risk across a cohort of 1,24,436 adults. Researchers from Lund University, the University of Liverpool, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and Elypta measured three chondroitin sulphate disaccharides in urine using mass spectrometry. They combined these measurements into a GAGome score and assessed its predictive value both independently and alongside 13 established risk factors.

The five-year risk of developing cancer was 0.18% in the low-risk group, 2.3% in the intermediate-risk group, 7.6% in the high-risk group and 32% in the very-high-risk group. A one standard deviation increase in the score was associated with a 66% higher risk of cancer, even after accounting for established risk factors. The researchers estimated that screening people classified as high risk could identify 54% of cancers, including 54% of in-situ carcinomas, with a 17% false-positive rate. The association was independent of established risk factors and consistent across cancer stages, which makes this dynamic biological marker worth testing prospectively," said John Field, professor of molecular oncology at the University of Liverpool and a co-author of the study.

"Urinary GAG profiling offers a promising, non-invasive approach to identifying people at increased risk of multiple cancers. However, findings from the Dutch population cannot be directly extrapolated to India because of differences in genetic backgrounds, risk factors and cancer patterns. Large, multicentric studies in Indian populations are needed to establish its accuracy and cost-effectiveness. The test should be considered for wider screening only if it demonstrates improved early diagnosis and reduced cancer mortality," said Dr Abhishek Shankar, associate professor of radiation oncology at AIIMS.

The findings could pave the way for more personalised cancer risk assessment, but the urine biomarker is not a diagnostic test.

2 SPOs killed in J&K's Kishtwar, service rifles missing

Srinagar, Agency: Bullet-riddled bodies of two special police officers (SPOs) were found in the remote forests of J&K's Kishtwar district Thursday, with their service rifles missing, triggering a search for the attackers and renewed concerns over a possible revival of terrorism in Chenab valley.

Rashpal Kumar, 45, and Bobby Chand, 57, both residents of Kiyar Dachhan and posted with SOG Kiyar sector, had gone missing on Nov 10 while travelling to an Army post at Dharna-Marwah for rotation duty. A search was launched after they failed to reach the post. Their mobile phones were initially reachable but later switched off.

One SPO had a bullet wound to his head and the other to his back. Their bodies were shifted for autopsy. Their INSAS and .303 rifles were missing.

Sources said it was too early to link the killings to terrorism. However, Hizbul Mujahideen commander Jahangir Saroori, believed to be the longest-surviving terrorist in Chenab valley, was suspected to have been hiding in the area for decades. Mudassar, Riaj and south Kashmir terrorist Latif Bhat were also trying to revive terrorism in the region, the sources added.

The killings came as security forces intensified searches in south Kashmir's Kulgam after a terrorist fired at a CRPF checkpoint around 70km south of Srinagar Wednesday, wounding three personnel. A CRPF officer said the attack appeared to have been carried out by a lone gunman using a high-calibre weapon, possibly an AK-47, before escaping. The wounded men were out of danger. Political parties condemned both the Kulgam attack and the Kishtwar killings. J&K leader of opposition Sunil Sharma alleged terrorists had kidnapped the SPOs while they were travelling through the dense forest.

Indians top again: 9.3L get OECD citizenships in 5 years

New Delhi, Agency: Indians continue to top the list of people acquiring citizenship in advanced economies, with around 9.25 lakh Indian citizens acquiring the nationality of an OECD member country between 2020 and 2024, according to the 'International Migration Outlook - 2026' report released on Thursday by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), reports Lubna Kably. The figure marks a sharp increase of 41% from just over 6.5 lakh Indians who acquired citizenship of OECD member countries during 2015-2019. India remains the largest country of former nationality among those acquiring citizenship in OECD member countries, ahead of Syria and Mexico. India remains ahead of Syria and Mexico. whose nationals accounted for around 5.9 lakh citizenships in OECD countries each during the five-year period 2020-2024. Interestingly, while China was the sixth largest source country whose nationals acquired OECD member country citizenship, the numbers fell by nearly 12% to 3.4 lakh in 2020-24 as compared to the previous five-year period. OECD comprises 38 member countries - notably US, UK, European nations, Australia, Canada, Japan and South Korea. According to additional data shared with Media, during 2020-2024, OECD member countries embraced nearly 87 lakh new citizens - Indians constitute around 10% of its new citizens. In the previous five-year period, nearly 65 lakh individuals acquired citizenship of an OECD member country - once again the composition of Indians was 10%.

OECD also shared year-on-year India-specific data with Media, showing that 2.3 lakh Indians acquired citizenship of OECD member countries in 2024, mainly in Canada (87,320), US (48,820) and Australia (28,969). In 2023, the overall India-figure was marginally lower at nearly 2.2 lakh, with the same three countries accounting acquisitions.
