

Row before elections

Generally, it is seen that when the President comes, the chief minister and other ministers remain present. But chief minister madam didn't come. Mamata did like my younger sister. Maybe she is miffed with me and that's why the programme was held so far.

—DEBPAJI MURMU, President

The pain and anguish expressed by Rashtrapati Ji, who herself hails from a tribal community, has caused immense sadness in the minds of the people of India. The TMC government has truly crossed all limits. Their administration is responsible for this insult to the President.

—MAMATA MODI, Prime Minister

West Bengal chief minister Mamata Banerjee, who herself hails from a tribal community, has caused immense sadness in the minds of the people of India. The TMC government has truly crossed all limits. Their administration is responsible for this insult to the President.

—MAMATA BANERJEE, West Bengal chief minister taking the BJP's agenda forward. We respect the President. But even the President was sent to sell politics and the BJP's agenda. You have been trapped by the BJP. Do we have no work other than regularly receiving guests and accompanying them? If you come once a year, I would receive you. But if you come 50 times a year, how can I give you so much time?" she said.

Banerjee said that the President had not highlighted the plight of tribal people in NDA-ruled states, accusing her of playing politics at the BJP's expense.

Soon after Murmu's comments, the PM and several Union ministers, including home minister Amit Shah and finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman, too targeted the government of the poll-bound state.

Modi labelled the state government's actions as "shameful and unprecedented" and said: "The pain and anguish expressed by Rashtrapati Ji, who herself hails from a tribal community, has caused immense sadness in the minds of the people of India. The TMC Government of West Bengal has truly crossed all limits. Their administration is responsible for this insult to the President."

Modi added that the TMC government was treating Santal culture "casually". "The office of the President is above politics and the sanctity of this office should always be respected. One hopes better sense prevails among the West Bengal government and TMC," he posted on X.
