

Bihar to use river silt for road construction, boost sustainable infra

Patna, 25 April (Representative)

In a significant step towards sustainable infrastructure development, the Bihar government has decided to use silt (de-silted material) from rivers, canals, ponds, and other water bodies for road construction. Road Construction Secretary Pankaj Kumar Pal said here today that the initiative aims to protect fertile agricultural land from erosion while enhancing the storage capacity of water bodies. He said the process of utilising silt in several road projects has already begun. Pal said that the engineers have been directed to coordinate at the district level for the effective use of de-silted materials. He also instructed that the necessary No Objection Certificates (NOCs) be obtained from the Water Resources Department to expedite implementation. Pal said the move is expected to accelerate several key infrastructure projects. In Patna, silt will be used in projects such as the stretch from Samagra Udyan (km 0 to 6), Digha to Sahyata Dwar, and Bhadra Ghat to Didarganj (km 0.00 to 8.50), which will help speed up construction work. Similarly, in Nalanda district, the 27.18-km four-lane greenfield tourist corridor from Salepur to Rajgir (NH-82), part of the Buddhist Circuit, will also benefit from the use of de-silted material. Other major projects expected to gain momentum include the Chausa-Buxar bypass (NH-319) in Buxar district, the four-lane access-controlled greenfield national highway from Balbhadrapur to Bela Nawada (NH-119D) in Darbhanga under the Bharatmala project, and the Amas-Darbhang corridor (Package-4). The Secretary said that road construction traditionally depends on soil sourced from fertile agricultural land, leading to land degradation. Although the department had earlier experimented with fly ash, its limited availability has led to renewed pressure on agricultural soil. By using silt from water bodies, the government aims to reduce dependence on fertile soil while also improving irrigation, increasing groundwater recharge, and boosting the water-holding

Delhi govt committed to improving lives of sanitation workers, ensuring workplace safety: Indraj

New Delhi/Chandigarh, Apr 25 (Bureau)

Delhi Social Welfare Minister Ravinder Indraj Singh on Saturday said the Chief Minister Rekha Gupta-led government is committed to bringing meaningful improvements in the lives of sanitation workers, ensuring workplace safety, and providing them with a life of dignity and respect. The minister, during his address at a 'Chintan Shivir' being held in Chandigarh, stated that the experiences shared and best practices discussed during this program regarding dignity in sanitation work, prevention of sanitation-related deaths under Mission Zero, are going to play a significant role in making Delhi's policies more effective and impactful. Special emphasis was also laid on technology-driven initiatives during the event, where the 'SMILE-Beggary Survey Mobile Application' was launched, which will digitally strengthen the survey, rehabilitation, and monitoring of individuals engaged in begging.

Singh said that such digital initiatives will also be implemented in Delhi, leading to significant improvements in the transparency, monitoring, and effectiveness of shelter homes, rehabilitation centres, and social security schemes. He said that the model guidelines issued for beggars and shelter homes would prove instrumental in ensuring a humane and dignified life in the national capital. According to the minister, the Delhi government will prepare a concrete action plan to implement all these recommendations and strategies at the grassroots level, ensuring that the benefits of welfare schemes reach the last person and the objective of Antyodaya is fully realized. The sessions held on Saturday featured detailed discussions on scholarship distribution and access to education, the Nasha Mukti Bharat ecosystem, dignity in sanitation work, prevention of sanitation-related deaths under Mission Zero, care for senior citizens, and early intervention for children with disabilities.

Samrat Choudhary pushes eco-tourism drive, seeks fast-track plan

Patna, April 25 (FN Reporter)

Bihar Chief Minister Samrat Choudhary has said that there is immense potential for eco-tourism in the state and directed officials to prepare a comprehensive plan for its development. Chairing a review meeting on eco-tourism in Patna on Saturday, he asked all concerned departments to work on it expeditiously. He also emphasised the need to link Bihar's historical heritage, cultural, and religious sites with eco-tourism. The Chief Minister said the government is making sustained efforts to make Bihar an attractive destination for both domestic and international tourists, and to develop it as a hub for spiritual, cultural, and eco-tourism. He directed that tourist facilities be developed around all state reservoirs under the PPP (Public-Private Partnership) model and asked officials to consult local stakeholders and incorporate their suggestions. He also called for the preparation of a plan to develop the Jain circuit in the state, in consultation with members of the Jain community. To further promote tourism, the Chief Minister instructed that tourism packages be prepared soon, keeping visitors' convenience in mind. He said that public representatives and officials should themselves visit tourist sites and spend time there to help raise awareness about available facilities and attractions among the general public. He also suggested designing two-day tourism packages for ministers, legislators, officials, and employees so they can visit and stay at key tourist destinations in Bihar. The Chief Minister further directed that hilly areas to enable tourists to better access and enjoy scenic locations. He also asked the Environment, Forest, and Climate Change Department to undertake plantation drives around ponds across the state, along with the development of tourist amenities. He said this would boost local employment, enhance green cover, and support water conservation.
