Car mows down Jain sadhvis in Rewa, 1 killed

Bhopal: A Jain sadhvi was killed and two others critically injured after a speeding car allegedly mowed down three Jain sadhvis, all in their 40s, while they were walking along a roadside near the collectorate in Madhya Pradesh's Rewa early Wednesday. The vehicle, which allegedly fled the spot after the crash, was intercepted near Jabalpur following a nearly 270-km chase, police said. The accident took place early morning, when the three Jain sadhvis were walking along the roadside accompanied by three local followers, who later alerted police and helped identify the fleeing vehicle. According to police, the sadhvis were travelling on foot as part of a religious journey when the speeding car suddenly veered towards them and hit them. One of the sadhvis, Shruti Mati Mata, a native of Sagar district, died on the spot. TNN

3 Kuno cheetahs to shift to Guj; expert team submits report

P.Naveen@timesofindia.com

Bhopal: In a major step towards taking the Centre's ambitious cheetah reintroduction programme beyond the Kuno National Park of Madhya Pradesh, a special expert team constituted under 'Project Cheetah' has handed in its assessment report on Gujarat's Banni grasslands as another home for the feline species. The report has been submitted to the high-powered steering committee overseeing the programme.

The move paves the way for the first translocation of African cheetahs outside Kuno.

The report, prepared after an extensive field assessment of Banni in Gujarat's Kutch region, was submitted by a team headed by 'Project Cheetah' director Uttam Sharma and comprising senior experts, including an official from the National Tiger Conservation Authority (NTCA) and a wildlife veterinarian from Kuno National Park, sources told TOI.

The team is understood to have evaluated multiple parameters critical for cheetah introduction, including prey density, habitat suitability, veterinary preparedness, enclosure readiness, human-wildlife interface, landscape connectivity and long-term management requirements.

The report has now been placed before the special steering committee formed under 'Project Cheetah', which will decide the next course of action, including whether Banni is ready to host cheetahs, the number of animals to be shifted and the timeline for their relocation.

While Uttam Sharma declined to disclose the findings of the team's report, sources familiar with the assessment said the recommendations are largely favourable to Gujarat.

However, officials said the final decision rests with the steering committee, which will examine the report before approving any movement of animals at their next meeting.

While officials were tight-lipped on the assessment report, insiders said most likely three cheetahs, two females and one male from the Botswana batch currently housed at Kuno, would be sent to Banni. Gujarat forest department had placed their request for translocation of cheetahs a few months ago.

Twisha case: Court junks kin's plea for 2nd autopsy

Orders Preservation Of Her Body

Ashutosh.Shukla
@timesofindia.com

Bhopal: A Bhopal court dismissed an application moved by family of Twisha Sharma, the 33-year-old woman who died by suicide at her marital home in Bhopal's upscale Katara Hills on May 12 night, for a second autopsy at AIIMS, Delhi. However, the court directed the authorities that her body should be preserved.

Judicial magistrate Anudita Gupta said a letter be issued to police directing them to immediately obtain information regarding "low-temperature preservation facility" in Madhya Pradesh and submit a report to the court without delay.

The body as of now is kept in the mortuary of AIIMS, Bhopal, following an autopsy conducted

The family of the deceased, who was married to lawyer Sarthak Singh, son of former district judge Giribala Singh, had been demanding a second autopsy in Delhi, because of alleged lapses in police investigation and postmortem.

The court in its order, however, said that there are no major omissions or defects in the first autopsy report pointed out by the applicant, which warrants a second autopsy. The first autopsy was carried out at AIIMS, Bhopal soon after the death of Trisha Sharma.

Judge Anudita Gupta, while quoting from a Madras high court judgment, said the conscience of the court must be satisfied that there is a need for a second postmortem for the purpose of arriving at the truth. "Minor infractions of procedure will not make the court order a re-postmortem."

Though the police told the court that it has no objection if a re-postmortem is ordered, the court said that the police have nowhere questioned the legality of the postmortem carried out at AIIMS, Bhopal. Besides, there is nothing on record which indicates any collusive or suspicious relationship of the accused persons in the case with the medical team which conducted the postmortem on the body of the deceased at AIIMS.

The court further contemplated whether it has jurisdiction to order a postmortem at AIIMS, Delhi, and said the case is registered at Katara Hills police station, Bhopal, and the applicant is seeking a re-postmortem at AIIMS, Delhi, which prima facie appears to be outside the jurisdiction of the court.

Deeply unfortunate: Twisha's dad

Earlier in the day, the family had said it would move the Madhya Pradesh high court seeking cancellation of the anticipatory bail granted to the accused's mother and demanded an independent probe outside Madhya Pradesh under the monitoring of the Supreme Court. Twisha's dad Navnidhi Sharma raised several questions over alleged lapses in police probe. He alleged that Twisha's in-laws had tampered with evidence and described the incident as a well-planned crime. Referring to the police commissioner's statement calling it a suicide case, Sharma said the conclusion was based on the post-mortem report, which the family has challenged. He said this was the reason the family sought a second post-mortem. Sharma termed it is deeply unfortunate that the district court rejected their plea for a second post-mortem. He further alleged that the accused were using their influence and would eventually be exposed. TNN

HC awards ₹10L to bizman jailed after masala & aamchur flagged as heroin at Bhopal airport

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Bhopal/Jabalpur: The Madhya Pradesh high court has awarded Rs 10 lakh compensation to a businessman who spent 57 days in jail after packets of aamchur (dry mango powder) and garam masala in his luggage were allegedly flagged as heroin and psychotropic substances by an airport explosive detection machine at Bhopal airport.

Calling it a case of failure of state machinery and inadequate forensic infrastructure, the court held that the man's fundamental right to life and liberty under Article 21 had been infringed and said the state was vicariously liable for his incarceration.

Justice Deepak Khot of the MPHC, while hearing a petition filed by businessman Ajay Singh, directed the state govt to pay compensation within three months and also ordered a statewide inspection of forensic science laboratories to ensure innocent people are not subjected to wrongful detention in future.

The episode dates back to May 7, 2010, when Singh was about to board a Jet Airways flight from Bhopal to Delhi en route to Malaysia. During routine security screening at the airport, packets of branded aamchur powder and garam masala in his baggage allegedly triggered alarms on an Explosive Trace Detector (ETD) machine. Security personnel suspected the packets contained 1-4% heroin and 10% MDEA (Methylenedioxy-N-ethylamphetamine), a psychotropic substance under the NDPS Act.

Singh was immediately detained, a case was registered under the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act, and he was sent to jail. But what followed, the court noted, exposed serious gaps in the state's forensic system.

The seized samples were first sent to the Regional Forensic Science Laboratory (RFSL), Bhopal, which returned them, stating it lacked facilities to test for the suspected substance. The samples were then sent to the Central Forensic Science Laboratory (CFSL), Hyderabad, which eventually found no narcotic or contraband substance in the masala packets. Singh was finally released on July 2, 2010, after spending nearly two months in custody. A closure report was later accepted by a special NDPS court.

The petitioner argued that the ETD machine, manufactured abroad, was not calibrated for aromatic Indian spices, causing false positives. During proceedings, it was also pointed out that tests conducted on other brands of masala and aamchur similarly triggered alarms, raising concerns about the reliability of the airport screening mechanism.

Driver burnt alive after car catches fire

Jabalpur: A 56-year-old man from Nagpur was charred to death after a car he was driving overturned and caught fire in Balaghat district on Tuesday. Police said the accident occurred between 4 am and 5 am on the Balaghat-Mandla road near Kharra village when the vehicle was returning to Nagpur after dropping a patient in Parsawada.

Preliminary investigation suggests the vehicle was being driven at high speed and may have overturned after the driver possibly lost control or dozed off at the wheel. TNN

India end exposure tour on high with win over Australia

Australia struck first through Aurora Kovacevich in the eighth minute, catching the Indian defence off guard and taking an early lead. The setback, however, only deepened India's resolve. Captain Sweety Kujur restored parity in the 13th minute with a composed finish to level the match before the first quarter ended.

Momentum then swung decisively in India's favour when Diya put the hosts ahead on the halfhour mark, finishing a well constructed attack to make it 2-1 at halftime.

India asserted control after the interval, with Priyanka Minz extending the lead in the 44th minute. But it was Nausheen's intervention that crystallised the win. Her 50th minute strike followed a period of intense Indian pressure

U-18 WOMEN

— a sequence of crisp passes and sustained circle entries that eventually created the opening.

The goal not only added gloss to the scoreline but also highlighted Nausheen's ability to perform under pressure, a trait the team will rely on in the upcoming continental challenge. Coaches and teammates lauded Nausheen's composure and timing, pointing to her growing importance within the squad's attacking framework. Her ability to latch on to rebounds and convert chances has been a recurring theme during the exposure tour, and Wednesday's match reinforced her credentials as a key attacking option for India's U-18 side. Australia won the series 3-1. For the Indian youngsters, the win in the closing match carries immense significance as it has filled them with new belief and momentum going into the U-18 Asia Cup. Dindor's 'Ek Bagiya Maa Ke Naam' drive takes roots

As part of the 'Ek Bagiya Maa Ke Naam' initiative, about 3,500 fruit-bearing saplings were planted. Further, to ensure irrigation remains unimpeded even into harsh summer months, villagers improvised drip irrigation systems using discarded plastic bottles and earthen pots, allowing plants to survive with minimal water usage.

Water harvesting systems were also installed in govt buildings, while soak pits were constructed to improve rainwater percolation. Schools and hostels developed kitchen gardens where wastewater from kitchens and bathrooms was diverted through drains for irrigation purposes.

Collector Anju Pawan Bhadauria said Dindori's soil has poor water retention capacity, forcing many farmers to rely on single crop cultivation annually.

Despite these limitations, the district succeeded in transforming water conservation into a grassroots campaign. According to data available with the district administration, about 2.98 lakh structures have been developed under the initiative, including more than 41,000 recharge pits, nearly 10,000 farm ponds, over 6,000 check dams and thousands of rooftop water harvesting systems, dug-well recharge units and gully plugs. UCC models of Gujarat, U'khand to be studied

Hence, it has been decided to, as of now, keep 21% tribal population out of UCC and to bring in the remaining 79% population of MP under UCC.

Apart from seeking suggestions from the public, the UCC models prepared in Uttarakhand and Gujarat will also be studied to get help in developing a suitable model for MP.

The MP govt constituted the committee for UCC after the Gujarat assembly passed the UCC Bill in March.

The state govt said matters related to various personal and family laws — such as marriage, divorce, maintenance, inheritance, and other related subjects — are currently being administered under separate provisions. There was a need to review these subjects and develop a practical legal framework that ensures clarity among citizens. TNN
