ANTI-DRUG FIGHT: COLLECTIVE
EFFORTS SOUGHTDC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MAY 30

NTR district collector Dr. G. Lakshminisha and police commissioner S.V. Rajasekhara Babu have called for greater public participation in efforts to eliminate narcotics abuse and make NTR district drug-free.

The appeal was made at the district-level coordination meeting of the Naxa Mukta Bharat Abhiyan and Narco Coordination Centre (NCCORD) held in Vijayawada on Saturday.

The meeting reviewed the implementation of anti-drug initiatives, including the "Drug Free Dandya" campaign, EAGLE operations, de-addiction services, awareness programmes, NGO participation, Operation Safe Campus Zone and inspection of identified hotspots. Dr. Lakshminisha said substance abuse had serious consequences for individuals, families and society.

KEY TO INDUSTRIAL GROWTH: COLLECTORDC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MAY 30

NTR district collector Dr. G. Lakshminisha on Saturday directed officials to expedite approvals for industrial projects and adopt the principle of "Speed of Doing Business" to promote investment and industrial growth in the district.

Chairing a meeting of the District Industries and Export Promotion Committee at the collectorate, the collector reviewed industrial approvals, incentive claims and the implementation of industrial development schemes.

Dr. Lakshminisha said the state government was making sustained efforts to attract investments and promote industrialisation, and urged all departments to ensure smooth clearance for proposed projects.

He noted that industrial growth was a key component of the government's vision for economic development and highlighted ongoing efforts to strengthen industrial infra.

SOUTH COAST RAILWAY ZONE TO
START FROM JUNE 1DC CORRESPONDENT
VIJAYAWADA, MAY 30

TD state president and Gajuwada MLA Palla Srinivasa Rao has hailed the commencement of operations of the South Coast Railway Zone, headquartered in Visakhapatnam, as a historic milestone that fulfils a decades-long aspiration of the Telugu people.

Speaking after the district collector, M. Abhishek Kishore, confirmed the operational start from June 1, Palla described the achievement as the culmination of years of struggle, public demand, and sustained advocacy by elected representatives. He noted that the zone, comprising Vizianagaram, Guntur, and Guntakal divisions, would strengthen railway administration, accelerate infrastructure development, and generate employment opportunities, thereby contributing significantly to AP's economic progress.

Palla said the long-pending aspiration of Telugu people had found concrete expression under his leadership.

Elephants in TN, K'taka face climate stress, habitat loss

AVINASH P.
SUBRAMANYAM | DC
TIRUPATI, MAY 30

Climate stress, habitat degradation and shrinking food resources are increasingly driving elephants from Karnataka and Tamil Nadu into Chittoor district, intensifying human-elephant conflict in border villages. The situation is particularly severe in villages along the Andhra Pradesh-Tamil Nadu border, where elephants herd frequently enter agricultural fields in search of food.

Farmers report extensive crop damage, sleepless nights, and inadequate compensation, while forest officials struggle to manage highly mobile herds moving across state boundaries.

According to Forest department estimates, there are around 100 elephants in the Koundinya Wildlife Sanctuary which strays into contiguous areas of Chittoor district. In particular, there is a herd of about 25 elephants, which has emerged as a major concern in Ramakuppam mandal and nearby areas.

Movement of elephants has also become frequent in Palamaner, Kalur, and Somaiah mandals of Chittoor district. Forest officials said elephants are by nature migratory animals. But they generally remain confined to specific habitats they are familiar with. The 25-elephant herd is believed to have got accustomed to foraging in Krishnagiri, Gudiyatham, and Pernamb regions of Tamil Nadu. However, Elephants splash water on themselves to beat the scorching summer heat inside their enclosure at Indira Gandhi Zoological Park in Visakhapatnam on Saturday.

• ELEPHANTS from the Bannerghatta-Hosur landscape travel nearly 200 km, crossing state borders and major infrastructure barriers like highways before entering Andhra Pradesh.

Wherever there is distress, these elephants enter the forests in Chittoor district for prolonged stays. Officials say coordination between the Forest departments of Andhra Pradesh, Tamil Nadu, and Karnataka in managing elephant movement remains a challenge. While elephants move freely across state boundaries, forest management officials are largely confined to administrative jurisdictions, increasing pressure on border villages. For more than two decades, elephants from the Bannerghatta-Hosur landscape have travelled nearly 200 km before reaching parts of Chittoor district. Their route extends from Bannerghatta National Park in Karnataka to the Cauvery North Wildlife Sanctuary and Hosur scrublands in Tamil Nadu. In the process, the elephants cross barriers, such as the NH-7 highway and the Rayachoti railway line before entering Andhra Pradesh.

Wildlife researchers attribute the changing pattern of elephant movement to habitat loss, climate-related stress, and shrinking food resources in traditional elephant habitats. A 2021 study on elephant and human deaths in the landscape found that habitat degradation had pushed elephants beyond their traditional ranges, including into agricultural lands. Wildlife Sanctuaries contribute to increased human-elephant conflict. Researchers cite unseasonal rainfall, recurring drought conditions, and human-induced habitat changes as factors that have reduced food availability and are pushing elephants towards the agriculture-rich landscapes of Chittoor district. According to synchronised elephant population estimates, Chittoor district had eight elephants in 2012, 30 in 2017, and 82 in the 2024 census. The latest enumeration, currently underway in 15 forest beats across the combined Chittoor district, is expected to record more than 120 elephants. Wildlife experts caution against interpreting the figures as evidence of a growing elephant population in Chittoor district.

Andhra Pradesh is not considered part of the traditional elephant range. Most elephants recorded in the state are linked to herds moving through inter-state forest corridors, which has turned Andhra into a sensitive elephant management zone, said wildlife biologist K. Kranti Chaitanya.

A forest department official involved in the latest synchronised elephant population exercise said fresh elephant movements continue to be recorded in the region. A herd of 15 elephants recently entered the Kuppam forest range from Tamil Nadu, while another 13-member herd moved into Gudipala. Another herd of 15 elephants crossed from Chittoor into Talakona forest range, near the Rayala Elephant Reserve Corridor. Officials said apart from elephants associated with the Koundinya Wildlife Sanctuary, another 50 to 60 elephants periodically enter the district from neighbouring Karnataka and Tamil Nadu through Krishnagiri and Kuppam before returning to their original habitats.

VIJAYAWADA, MAY 30

Forest officials have stepped up efforts to capture a tiger roaming the Rumpachodavaram forest area after repeated cattle killings triggered concern among villagers and farmers.

The tiger, believed to have established its territory on the fringes of Papikonda National Park, has not attacked any person or entered human habitations.

Officials said existing guidelines permit capture only under specific circumstances, making the operation challenging. A senior forest official said surveillance has been intensified following threats from some tribal residents to kill the animal.

Advanced tracking technology, including a satellite collar, is being used to monitor its movements.

The Directorate of Medical Education (DME) has entrusted the full additional charge of Superintendent of Government General Hospital (GGH), Guntur, to Dr. N.V. Sundararaj, who is currently serving as principal of Guntur Medical College.

The arrangement has been made in view of the retirement of the present GGH superintendent, Dr. S.S.V. Ramana, later this month. The DME issued orders assigning the additional responsibility to ensure continuity in the administration of the hospital.

Dr. Sundararaj has been associated with several development initiatives at Guntur Medical College in recent years.

Rathotsavam marks
8th day BrahmotsavsPATHRI RAJASEKHAR | DC
NELLORE, MAY 30

Thousands of devotees participated in the grand Rathotsavam of Lord Sri Govindaraja Swamy in Tirupati on Saturday, the eighth day of the annual Brahmotsavams, with chants of "Govinda, Govinda" echoing through the temple town.

The chariot procession began at 5:30 am and passed through Karnala Street, Beroi Street and Gandhi Road before returning to the temple's ratha mandapam.

Devotees pulled the richly decorated chariot, offered coconuts and performed camphor aarti along the route.

Temple authorities said the Rathotsavam conveys a spiritual message of self-realisation, symbolising the human body as a chariot guided by intellect and controlled through the mind and senses.

Later, a grand Snapana Tirumanjanam was performed for Sri Govindaraja Swamy, Sri devi, Bhudevi and Nannamalvar. Priests ceremonially bathed the deities with milk, curd, honey, sandalwood paste and fruit juices. The festival concluded with United Seva and Ashwa Vahanam.

Now delayed monsoon
might arrive by June 7K.M.P. PATNAIK | DC
VISAKHAPATNAM, MAY 30

Southwest Monsoon, now delayed beyond the scheduled date, might set in over Andhra Pradesh by June 7 or June 8, senior scientist at IMD Amaravati Dr. S. Karunasagar has disclosed.

He explained that conditions are favourable for further advance of southwest monsoon into some more parts of southeast, west Arabian Sea, Lakshadweep Islands, some parts of Kerala and Tamil Nadu, some more parts of southwest, west central, east central, and northeast Bay of Bengal, and remaining parts of southeast Bay of Bengal during next 4-5 days.

The original schedule of monsoon setting in over Kerala is June 1. It had earlier been predicted

• CITING REASONS for the delay, the IMD said the parameters that decide the onset of monsoon have not met the required criteria.

• IT TIED the delayed monsoon to the influence of El Niño.

ed that the monsoon would set in early on May 30. Citing reasons for the delay, Karunasagar said the parameters that decide the onset of monsoon have not met the required criteria.

The wind pattern has not been satisfactory and so is the outgoing long-wave radiation. The prolonged hot and dry spells, and the break in pre-monsoon spell, have affected the arrival of monsoon.

The Met office has tied the delayed monsoon to the influence of El Niño, a climate pattern that messes ocean temperatures in the Pacific Ocean. That can affect weather systems across various countries, including India.

During El Niño years, the monsoon winds may weaken or move slower than usual.

When that happens, rain can drop off and the arrival of clouds that carry rain over the Indian subcontinent may not get pushed back.

Officials say this kind of behaviour is already being observed during the ongoing monsoon season.

Though the IMD had predicted a weak monsoon, Karunasagar maintains that AP would have normal rainfall with two or more districts facing a deficit rainfall during the four-month monsoon period.

SHOW OF RESILIENCE

Students turn struggles, memories as creative expressions

ARUNA | DC
VISAKHAPATNAM, MAY 30

The annual exhibition at Andhra University's Fine Arts College showcased more than artistic talent, with students drawing inspiration from their family struggles, sacrifices and personal experiences.

Held over three days, the exhibition featured paintings, sculptures and mixed-media works that reflected personal experiences and social realities, particularly those of students from working-class backgrounds.

For D. Gopichand, sculpture became a medium to connect his relatives over her decision to pursue art. Sameera continued with the support of her mother.

Her works reflected themes of perseverance and aspiration shaped by that experience.

Pardha Pavani drew inspiration from everyday family life. Using materials including paper pulp, terracotta, fibreglass and banana-pulp paper, she explored themes of vulnerability and resilience through depictions rooted in personal memories and domestic experiences.

G. Lokesh Kumar's paintings reflected his farming background. His series, "Belief in What We Don't See," examined symbols associated with agricultural traditions during Sankranti, portraying objects such as decorated bicycles, mango leaves, red cloth sacks and lemons as expressions of faith and continuity in rural life.

P. Giri Prasad addressed issues of caste, class and social inequality through his work. Combining acrylics, charcoal and pastels, he used landscapes and animal imagery to explore social divisions and the responsibilities associated with privilege.

P.V. Hanumanth focused on the landscapes and cityscapes of Visakhapatnam. Drawing from observations of coastal routine, port activity and urban settings, he translated his studies into printmaking works using techniques such as woodcut and etching.

The exhibition highlighted how personal histories and family experiences continue to shape the creative vision of a new generation of artists.
