Delhi HC upholds Telegram restriction ahead of Neet retest

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 19 June

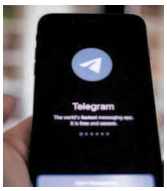
The Delhi High Court on Friday upheld the government's decision to temporarily restrict access to Telegram ahead of the crucial National Eligibility-cum-Entrance Test (Undergraduate), or Neet (UG) retest on June 21, saying the step was not disproportionate as the messaging app can facilitate "automated dissemination" of large content.

The high court, in its 39-page verdict, upheld the decision of the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (Meity) under Section 69A of the Information of Technology Act to ensure a fair re-examination of Neet (UG) , on June 21.

On May 12, the National Testing Agency had cancelled the Neet (UG) test held on May 3. A vacation bench of Justice Tejas Karia dealt with two questions whether the impugned order was vitiated by non-application of mind and if temporarily blocking the Telegram platform satisfied the requirement of proportionality.

Answering the questions, the bench held, "The measures adopted by Respondent No. 1 (the Centre) under the orders constitute the least restrictive measure for achieving the stated objective". "Accordingly, the action of Respondent No 1 in temporarily blocking public access to Telegram cannot be held to be disproportionate," the verdict said while dismissing the plea of the app.

"Section 69A of the IT Act empowers the Central Government, or any officer specially authorised by it in this behalf, to issue directions for blocking public access to any information generated, transmitted, received, stored, or hosted in any computer resource, where it is satisfied that such action is necessary or expedient in the interest of the sovereignty and integrity of India, defence of India, security of the State, friendly relations with foreign States, public order, or for preventing incitement to the commission of any cognizable offence relating thereto," it said.



THE SUPREME COURT HAS REFUSED TO ACCORD URGENT HEARING ON TWO SEPARATE PLEAS RELATED TO THE NEET (UG) RETEST

Taking note of emergency nature and the reasons accorded by the Centre for its action, the verdict said that they were "sufficient" and the procedure as provided under the law had been duly followed.

Taking note of submissions by Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, the verdict said the temporary blocking was directed to deal with the potentially grave implications for public order and for preventing the commission of cognizable offences arising from the circulation of examination-related misinformation and purported test papers on Telegram.

"This Court is of the view that given the emergency nature of the impugned order, the reasons supplied in arriving at the decision were sufficient," it held.

It said, "A perusal of the impugned order indicates that the Centre, upon consideration of the material placed before it, was satisfied that Telegram was being misused for the dissemination of examination-related misinformation, the circulation of purported examination papers, and other fraudulent and unlawful activities, which were likely to have serious implications for public order in the country".

The Centre directed that public access to Telegram be blocked until June 22 and that the message-editing feature be disabled until June 30, it said.

"The platform architecture of Telegram is conducive to amplification and mass dissemination of content, enabling information to reach a substantial number of users within a short span of time. Consequently, any unlawful content, if circulated on Telegram, is capable of being amplified rapidly and likely to give rise to a public order situation," the verdict said.

"Telegram also hosts an extensive bot ecosystem, which facilitates automated dissemination of content and other activities without human intervention. Further, the use of usernames in lieu of phone numbers enables concealment of user identifiers and facilitates the rapid dissemination of content, including content that may be illicit in nature," it said.

Meanwhile, the Supreme Court on Friday refused to accord urgent hearing on two separate pleas related to the re-test . "All Neet matters will go before Justice Narasimha's bench," the CJI said.

Jainendra Jain wins Wolf Prize in Physics

First Indian-origin person to win the award; honoured for discovering composite fermions

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 19 June

US-based Indian-origin theoretical physicist Jainendra K Jain has received the prestigious Wolf Prize in Physics for his discovery of composite fermions, a breakthrough that transformed the understanding of the fractional quantum Hall effect and continues to shape modern quantum physics.

Jain is the first person of Indian origin to receive the Wolf Prize in Physics.

The award was presented by Israeli President Isaac Herzog at a state ceremony in the Knesset in Jerusalem on Thursday.

Congratulating Jain and Venkatesan Sundaresan on receiving the Wolf Prize in Physics and Agriculture respectively, the Office of the Principal Scientific Advisor to the Government of India said in a post on X that the laureates were honoured for their "breakthrough discoveries".

"The Wolf Prize is awarded annually to scientists and artists for their exceptional achievements in science and arts. Professor Sundaresan was recognised for his key discoveries in plant genetics and crop improvement, while Professor Jain was recognised for his contributions towards our understanding of the two-dimensional electron system," it added.

Jain, who grew up in Sambhar, a small town on the edge of Rajasthan's Thar Desert, is the Founding Director of the Lodha Theoretical Physics Institute (LTPI) and serves as professor at Evan Pugh University and Eberly Family Chair in Physics at Pennsylvania State University, USA.

Awarded annually by the Wolf Foundation since 1978, the Wolf Prize in Physics honours physicists whose discoveries have profoundly advanced human knowledge. Widely regarded as among the most prestigious honours in the field, the prize has been awarded to 27 scientists who later went on to receive the Nobel Prize.

"I am deeply honoured by this recognition. Physics has given me far more than I could ever have imagined when I began this journey as a young boy growing up in rural Rajasthan," Jain said.

The discovery that earned Jain the award dates back to 1989 when he was a postdoctoral scholar at Yale University.

The awardee

- Indian-American theoretical physicist was born in Rajasthan; got his Master's degree in physics from IIT Kanpur
- Founding director of the Lodha Theoretical Physics Institute and professor at Pennsylvania State University

The award

- Israel's Wolf Prize is awarded annually by the Wolf Foundation for exceptional contributions in six fields
- It is among the world's most prestigious physics honours; 27 laureates later received the Nobel Prize

Quantum computing achieves an indigenous milestone

SHINE JACOB
Chennai, 19 June

In a milestone for India's quantum-computing hardware ecosystem, Amaravati Quantum Valley (AQV) has achieved indigenous dilution refrigerator successfully, reaching 4 Kelvin, or minus 269 degree centigrade, at the Quantum Reference Facility at Medha Towers, Amaravati.

According to sources, this is one of the coldest temperatures achieved in a research facility in India with more than 80 per cent domestically sourced components. Operating at 4 Kelvin enables testing and characterising technologies that are building blocks of future quantum computers, secure communication systems, advanced sensing platforms, and next-generation scientific innovation.

"The positive thing about this achievement is that we have done it with more than 80 per cent domestic components. This is a boost for 'Make in India' initiatives," said C V Sridhar, mission director, Andhra Pradesh State Quantum Mission, and one of the architects of the Amaravati Quantum Valley.

Quantum computing ecosystem developed at the facility in Amravati

4 KELVIN IS ONE OF THE COLDEST TEMPERATURES ACHIEVED IN A RESEARCH FACILITY IN INDIA WITH MORE THAN 80% DOMESTICALLY SOURCED COMPONENTS

In September last year, scientists, researchers, startups and industry leaders met Chief Minister Nara Chandrababu Naidu and presented an assessment showing that nearly 85 per cent of the components required for quantum computing infrastructure could be developed within India.

Recognising the scale of the opportunity, the state government and Information Technology Minister Nara Lokesh called for creating an indigenous quantum hardware ecosystem on the vision: "Made in Amaravati for the World."

Amaravati Quantum Valley partnered Qbit Force and Qubitech to map India's quantum hardware supply chain and identify opportunities for indigenous development, particularly in cryogenic technologies. In April, this effort led to the establishment of India's first Quantum Reference Facilities at Medha Towers and SRM University, also in Andhra Pradesh. These facilities were created to provide startups, researchers, academic institutions, national laboratories and industry partners access to advanced testing and validation infrastructure for quantum hardware developed in India.

SC declares right to walk on footpath a fundamental right

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 19 June

The Supreme Court on Friday batted for a regulatory body to effectuate the fundamental right to walk on demarcated footpaths.

A bench of Justices P S Narasimha and A S Chandurkar, which ruled that the right to walk on a demarcated footpath is a fundamental right and has priority over movement by motorised vehicles, said the citizen is entitled to enforce restitutionary remedy in case of violation of his right to walk.

"To enhance and effectuate the fundamental right to walk on demarcated footpaths, it is necessary to establish a regulatory body. Working with perpetual seal and succession, such a regulator will develop and retain institutional memory so that it can act on the basis of the experience, data and information it has gathered and processed," the bench emphasised. It said institutional expertise was critical, and such a regulator will employ human resources with domain expertise and talent.

"The regulator will maintain institutional integrity by taking independent and objective decisions without governmental or industrial control. These values shall flow naturally if there is institutional transparency and accountability."
