

Top court questions 2-child norm rationale for contesting local polls

Utkarsh Anand

NEW DELHI: The Supreme Court on Tuesday questioned the validity of continuing with the two-child norm for contesting panchayat and other local body elections, observing that the policy, conceived to curb population growth, may have outlived its purpose in light of India's declining fertility rate.

A bench of justices PS Narasimha and Alok Aradhe, while hearing a challenge to the disqualification of a Maharashtra sarpanch for having a third child, indicated that it was willing to examine the larger rationale behind retaining such provisions in state laws and sought assistance of advocate Rukmini Bobde as an amicus curiae.

"What kind of useless policy is this? Javed Vs State of Haryana needs reconsideration. The country has changed," remarked Justice Narasimha, referring to the Supreme Court's 2003 judgment that upheld the constitutional validity of the two-child norm for candidates contesting local body elections. "To perpetuate this policy to reduce population in the present situation could be completely unconstitutional," observed the bench, questioning the logic of continuing a policy designed to discourage population growth when several states are now grappling with falling fertility rates. "In your generation or my generation, it is a rarity to have three children. It is only one. This policy has lost its effect. It should immediately be withdrawn," Justice Narasimha remarked.

The observations came while the bench was hearing a petition filed by former Maharashtra sarpanch Mangala Bhimrao Ingle, who challenged a Bombay high court judgment upholding her disqualification under Section 14(1)(i) of the Maharashtra Village Panchayats Act, 1959.

Drunk law student mows down man

BHUBANESWAR: A 37-year-old man was killed after a speeding Mercedes-Benz allegedly driven by an intoxicated 21-year-old law student rammed into his motorcycle near Shastri Nagar Square in Bhubaneswar, police said on Tuesday. The incident took place late on Monday. The accused, Soumya Ranjan Rath, was arrested and produced before a court on Tuesday, said Kharevela Nagar police station in-charge Debendra Biswal. "The victim, Debiprasad Routray, an air-conditioner mechanic from Nishchintakoli in Cuttack district, died on the spot. Rath, a law student at SOA University and son of prominent builder Shiba Sekhar Rath, was driving the car at the time of the accident," Biswal added.

Police said that a girl travelling with the accused was initially sent to a short-stay home after confusion over whether she was behind the wheel when the crash occurred. "However, we sent her back to her home on Tuesday after we were clear that she was not involved in the accident," Bhubaneswar DCP Jagmohan Meena said. According to witnesses, Routray was taking a U-turn at the traffic signal at Shastri Nagar Square when the Mercedes, coming from the Nicco Park side, hit his motorcycle at high speed. "The impact reduced the two-wheeler to a mangled wreck and dragged the victim for nearly 150-200 metres before the vehicle came to a halt," said a local.
