

You don't fight the athlete, you fight for them: Coach Param'

- Dreamed of building athletes by taking loans, ultimately securing national camp berths mation of the Rewa airstrip—once a simple landing strip—into a robust foundation for regional development under the UDAN scheme. Highlighting existing connectivity with Delhi and Raipur, Naidu noted that the new routes will effectively link Vindhya with eastern India and major urban centers, directly benefiting local citizens, students, entrepreneurs, and tourists.

Reflecting on the journey, Coach Ashwar revealed that the path was fraught with hurdles, including widespread discouragement and societal skepticism. To fund rigorous training, competitive exposure, and essential equipment, Ashwar shouldered approxifinals of the Under-17 Youth League.

Ashwar firmly believes that a coach's duty transcends a mere two hours of on-field drills. Stating that "one must fight for the athlete, not with them," he emphasizes that if a player stagnates after years of mentorship, the coach must introspect. Saloni and Manju's selection for the national camp stands as the ultimate vindication of this philosophy.

Betrayal within: BJP candidate slams internal saboteurs after Datia defeat

Conceding defeat following the Datia Assembly by-election, BJP candidate Ashutosh Tiwari delivered a sharp critique of internal elements, stating that holding public office is secondary to honoring voter trust. While emphasizing that a formal review of the setback will take place, Tiwari expressed profound disappointment toward party members who profess loyalty to the organization while actively undermining it. He urged such individuals to reflect emotionally on their actions, stressing that treating the party as a mere facade while engaging in internal sabotage is unacceptable.

The recent by-election results from Bihar's Bankipur and Madhya Pradesh's Datia transcend ordinary electoral outcomes, serving as powerful proof that the public is no longer satisfied with mere cosmetic changes to leadership. Voters demand substantive shifts in policy and systemic accountability.

In Bankipur—a region historically forged by student movements from the days of Jayaprakash Narayan to modern youth aspirations—Prashant Kishore's Jan Suraj victory shattered traditional caste-based equations. Notably, the defeat of the ruling party in the home turf of its national leadership underscores that high-profile status cannot mask grassroots dissatisfaction or the neglect of local issues. By embracing Jan Suraj's focus on education, employment, and foundational development, voters demonstrated an eager shift toward alternative politics built on tangible vision rather than hollow promises.

Concurrently, the political tremors in Madhya Pradesh's high-profile Datia constituency mirror this growing demand for grassroots transformation. Together, these dual outcomes act as a vital milestone, laying the groundwork for a more accountable leadership and reshaping the future political landscape across the Hindi heartland.

Bhopal: Addressing the India Rural Colloquy 2026 at MANIT Bhopal, Madhya Pradesh Minister of Tribal Affairs Kunwar Vijay Shah emphasized that technology integration and targeted skill development are paramount to strengthening rural enterprises. Stressing youth self-reliance alongside support from initiatives like the Ladli Behna Yojana, he noted that nurturing local talent is key to sustainable growth.

The Bhopal chapter, themed 'The Prosperity Formula for Madhya Pradesh,' convened policymakers, thought leaders, and grassroots changemakers to chart a climate-resilient path toward 2047. Discussions spanned women's safety, climate resilience, and local economic development, featuring insights from dignitaries like Padma Shree awardee Mahesh Sharma, who underscored that development must stem from mutual learning with Adivasi communities.

The event also witnessed the release of crucial knowledge products, including impact assessments on gender equality and handbooks on rural water management. Organized by Transform Rural India, the multi-state colloidal platform continues to unite cross-sector leaders to drive equitable, community-led transformations across rural India.

Gwalior: The Madhya Pradesh Hockey Academy scripted history by winning both the Junior and Sub-Junior titles at the 4th Hockey India Junior and Sub-Junior Women's Academy National Championship-2026 held at the Shrimant Rajmata Vijayaraje Scindia Sports Complex in Gwalior.

The academy defeated Pritam Singh of the Vach Hockey Academy, Sonipat, in both finals to complete a remarkable double. In the Sub-Junior final, the teams were locked 2-2 in regular time before Madhya Pradesh sealed a 3-1 victory in the penalty shootout. Paridhi was named Player of the Match. In the Junior final, the host edged past Sonipat 3-2, with Kanak Pal earning the Player of the Match award.

The championship featured 28 teams from across the country. Raj Karan Hockey Academy secured third place in the Sub-Junior category while Bhai Behlo Hockey Academy Bhagta, finished third in the Junior event.

Collector Ruchika Chauhan presented trophies and awards at the closing ceremony, attended by sport officials, coaches, players, and hockey enthusiasts.
