

Synagogue restoration begins in Mala, 3-month deadline set

Restoration of the historic Mala Jewish Synagogue nearly a year after its roof collapsed during heavy rain. Conservation under the 100-day programme of the UDF government

THRISSUR

The long-awaited restoration of the historic Mala Jewish Synagogue has begun, nearly a year after its roof collapsed during heavy rain, leaving one of Kerala's important Jewish heritage monuments in a state of neglect.

The restoration has been taken up under the State government's 100-day programme as part of the Muziris Heritage Project. Muziris Heritage Project Limited has entrusted the work to Steel Industries Kerala Limited (SILK).

Officials expect to complete the restoration within three months.

However, continuous monsoon rain could affect the pace of the construction. The work will include rebuilding the collapsed roof and restoring the synagogue's walls. Engineers will also assess whether prolonged exposure to rain and sunlight has weakened the structural stability of the walls before undertaking the conservation measures.

A monitoring committee comprising the panchayat president, secretary, panchayat engineer and elected members will oversee every stage of the restoration to ensure quality and timely completion.

Plastic sheets

The synagogue has remained covered with temporary plastic sheets for more than a year after the roof caved in during heavy rain in June last year. The prolonged delay in beginning restoration had triggered widespread public criticism. The roof collapse had also sparked allegations of irregularities in the maintenance of the protected heritage structure, with demands for a Vigilance probe still pending.

AquaFit initiative to train 14,000 students in swimming in first phase

The Hindu Bureau
THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

As many as 14,000 students will be trained in swimming in the first phase of the General Education department's AquaFit swimming training programme, Minister for General Education N. Samudheen has said.

He was speaking after performing the State-level inauguration of AquaFit, as part of the department's 100-day action plan, at Jimmy George Aquatic Complex in Thiruvananthapuram on Wednesday.

Life-saving skill

The Minister said since Kerala was a land of rivers and waterbodies, learning to swim was not only about sporting ability but also a life-saving skill. It was an excellent exercise that kept lifestyle diseases at bay and ensured comprehensive physical health.

The goal of AquaFit, he said, was to provide 14,000 students across the 14 districts - 1,000 students in each district - training in swimming.

Students selected from schools will be given training in swimming pools located within 5 km. The support of local self-government institutions and other departments concerned would be ensured.

The Minister said AquaFit would help reduce drowning-related accidents and discovery and nurture of future swimming talents. When those who are trained in swimming teach others, awareness in society of water safety would increase, he pointed out.

Minister for Health K. Muralaeeharan presided over the function.

Minister for Sports O.J. Janeesh was the chief guest. Olympian P.R. Sreejesh spoke.
