Russian drone strikes bus in Ukraine, kills five

KYIV

A Russian drone struck a passenger bus in southern Ukraine early on Wednesday, killing five people and wounding at least seven in the latest in a series of Russian strikes on civilian transportation. Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy called the attack an atrocity with no military purpose.

The strike occurred in the Nikopol district of Ukraine's Dnipropetrovsk region, near the war's southern front line. Oleksandr Hanzha, head of the regional military administration, said that all five were killed at the scene while the seven wounded were receiving medical care. Zelenskyy described the vehicle as a minibus and said in an X post that the strike had "no military rationale" and that it was "just another atrocity." He said the strike was connected to Russia's targeting of logistics and critical infrastructure that has continued "unabated."

Zelenskyy said that a passenger train was also struck in the Mykolaiv region on Wednesday, damaging a railway station and a diesel locomotive. Nearly 170 passengers on board the train were evacuated before the strike. An electric locomotive in the north-western city of Kovel was also struck, Zelenskyy said.

Russian strikes on Ukraine's rail network have resulted in more than 500 locomotives being damaged or completely destroyed since the beginning of the all-out war on Feb. 24, 2022, with more than half those strikes occurring this year, Ukrainian Foreign Minister Andrii Sybiha wrote on X on Tuesday.
