

New DC Ramya prioritises education, nutrition issues

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Chitradurga

NEWLY appointed Chitradurga Deputy Commissioner S. Ramya on Tuesday said the district administration would respond promptly to public grievances pointed out by the media and work towards the district's overall development. Addressing reporters, she assured that issues raised through media reports would receive attention and cooperation from the administration.

Ramya noted that three taluks have already been declared drought-hit based on Central government criteria. A report on rainfall deficiency and dry conditions in the remaining taluks will be submitted for consideration.

She also stressed the need to protect poor and eligible farmers while disposing of bagair hukum applications. Applications under Forms 50 and 53 will be processed according to the rules, while scrutiny of applications filed under Form 57 is underway.

Pointing out social concerns, Ramya expressed worry over malnutrition among pregnant women and children, as well as the growing number of girls missing out on education. District data showed Molakalmuru as one of the poorest and most educationally and socially backward taluks. Many girls are not attending school, and malnutrition remains a serious issue.

She observed that traditional knowledge about nutritious diets, once common among rural families, is gradually disappearing. Locally grown greens, vegetables and millets such as jowar and ragi had historically formed the basis of healthy diets. Ramya said girls should be educated about nutrition and traditional food practices at the school and college levels. Greater focus on girls' education, quality schooling and child health, she added, could immensely improve living standards despite economic challenges.

To address drinking water losses, the administration is considering installing water meters to curb unauthorised tapping and wastage from main supply pipelines. While villages along these pipelines have sought water connections, reports of illegal tapping have also emerged. Ramya said access to drinking water cannot be denied, but measures are needed to prevent misuse and wastage. On environmental issues, she said technical interventions would be introduced to prevent lake pollution and stop sewage from flowing directly into water bodies. Following a city inspection, she found sewage entering lakes through the underground drainage network and directed officials to provide details on the volume of discharge and existing preventive measures. She plans to personally inspect affected sites and oversee remedial action.

The district administration will respond promptly to public grievances pointed out by the media

Unscheduled power cuts disrupt daily life, biz activity in S'mogga

Consumers demand outage alerts as supply-demand gap triggers frequent power cuts

ARPITHA I @ Shivamogga

UNSCHEDULED load shedding over the past several days has caused widespread inconvenience to residents, traders, commercial establishments and industries across Shivamogga city, with consumers urging MESCOM to restore a stable power supply at the earliest.

Ramesh H.S., a shopkeeper in the city, told TNIE that frequent and unannounced power outages were affecting business operations, particularly during peak evening hours. "Many people visit shops after work to purchase essentials and do their shopping. The unscheduled load shedding is creating inconvenience for customers and has become a major setback for businesses," he said. He added that not all shops and establishments have power backup facilities and many small businesses cannot afford such systems.

Expressing similar concerns, Shivamogga District Chamber of Commerce and Industry president B. Gopinath said industries had been facing difficulties due to the power interruptions over the last five to six days.

"The unscheduled load shedding has become a headache for industries. It is adversely affecting productivity, and MESCOM officials must resolve the issue as soon as possible," he said.

According to official sources in MESCOM, the increase in electricity demand coupled with a shortage in power supply has necessitated unscheduled load shedding. Officials said the situation is expected to improve within the next two to three days.

Sources explained that two power-generating units recently stopped production because of technical issues. At the same time, electricity demand across the state has reportedly increased by nearly 30 per cent compared to the previous year.

Officials also pointed to deficient rainfall and declining water levels in reservoirs, which have impacted power generation. While electricity production has reduced, consumption has continued to rise, creating a supply-demand gap.

"To maintain grid stability, load shedding has become inevitable. Discussions are underway with power generators to procure additional electricity. Power has also been procured from central government sources, but there is still a shortfall," sources said.

According to MESCOM officials, Shivamogga district currently requires around 520 to 525 megawatts of power. They said they expect to resolve the issue within the next three to four days. Officials further noted that one of the major challenges in power management is the lack of large-scale storage technology, as generated electricity must be consumed within a limited timeframe rather than stored for extended periods. Residents, traders and industrialists have urged the authorities to address the shortage quickly and, in the meantime, provide advance information about power outages to minimise disruption to daily life and economic activity.
