'Reach out to every rural family,' Bhajanlal Sharma tells BJP workers ahead of panchayat polls

Jaipur, Oct 1 (Representative)

Rajasthan Chief Minister Bhajanlal Sharma on Thursday asked the BJP workers to strengthen every booth and intensify contact with voters ahead of the upcoming panchayat elections. Interacting with party workers at Fatehpur in Sikar district, Sharma credited the BJP's performance in the recent urban local body elections to the efforts of its workers, organisational strength and continuous contact with people. "Our next target is the panchayat elections. We have to take the message of development, good governance and public welfare to every village and work for a big victory," he said. Sharma asked BJP workers to reach out to every family in villages and make government welfare schemes concerning farmers, women, youth, the poor and rural development accessible to eligible beneficiaries. "Every booth should be strong; there should be contact in every village and dialogue with every family. This should be our priority," he said. He also asked the party workers to bring new voters, youth, women and first-time political workers into the organisation. The chief minister claimed that the BJP had formed boards in 204 urban local bodies in the state following the recent civic polls, including nine in Churu, eight in Jhunjhunu and five in Sikar. He said the results showed public support for the work of the BJP governments at the Centre and in Rajasthan.
