Technician lured through dating app, held at knifepoint, robbed of ₹37,000

A 27-year-old technician was lured through a gay dating app to an isolated location in Nagpur, where two youths threatened him at knifepoint, assaulted him and robbed him of Rs 37,000. The incident occurred near Bahadura Phata on Oct 2. Police arrested Antariksh Mishra, 19, and Amit Patil, 23. A similar case was registered against them in the past at Mankapur police station, sources said. Investigators are checking whether the duo was involved in more such incidents. The complainant works at a private hospital and lives in the city. Police said he came in contact with the accused on a gay dating app. The accused took him to an isolated location on their bike. After reaching the spot, they threatened the complainant at knifepoint, snatched his mobile phone and forced him to transfer Rs 5,000 online, police said.

Indore civic workers dig through trash to recover woman's gold

Salil Mekaad
@timesofindia.com

Indore: Somewhere between a household dustbin at Indore's New Ramnagar and the garbage transfer station (GTS) at Sangam Nagar, a gold mangalsutra went missing on Saturday. It had slipped into the dustbin by accident and was carried off with the day's waste. By evening, it was back with its owner, recovered by municipal workers who heard her out and then dug through piles of garbage to find it.

The day had begun like any other for vehicle number MP 09 DP 2281, which was making its regular rounds in New Ramnagar. Driver Mohit Chauhan and helper Hemant Rajkumar were going from home to home, collecting waste.

According to zone 4 chief sanitary inspector (CSI) Vijay Yadav, at one of those homes, a woman handed over her household waste, segregated into wet and dry, as the collection system requires.

The vehicle moved on along its route and eventually reached the GTS at Sangam Nagar.

It was there, while the waste was being processed,

The woman told the staff her gold mangalsutra had accidentally fallen into the dustbin and was already mixed with the waste collected by the vehicle that the woman arrived. She told the staff that her gold mangalsutra had accidentally fallen into the dustbin and that its contents had already gone into the collection vehicle. By then, her waste had been mixed in with everything else the vehicle had gathered on its route.

The staff did not dismiss her. Chauhan and Rajkumar, the very pair who had made the collection, joined GTS employees Amar and Govind and began searching through the waste that had come in from New Ramnagar. They worked through it with care and caution, and the search paid off: the mangalsutra was found.

Amar and Govind then handed the ornament over safely to the woman.

She thanked the municipal staff and praised their honesty, dedication to duty and promptness.

Abetment of suicide: When words, actions invite charge

Swati Deshpande
& Rebecca Samervell | TNN

Mumbai: The recent death by suicide of a second-year IIT-Bombay student brought into sharp focus one of the most legally complex and emotionally charged areas of criminal law: abetment of suicide. At its core, the offence requires a trial court to ascertain whether a person's words, actions, neglect or dereliction directly instigated and caused another individual to take their own life.

IIT-B professor Suryanarayana Doolla has been booked for allegedly abetting the suicide and under provisions of the caste Atrocities Act, while the student Sahil Wadke's parents, grieving an irreplaceable loss, launched a fast to demand his arrest for abetment too, an offence that attracts up to 10 years' rigorous imprisonment and fine.

TIMES Special

However, convictions in abetment-related cases remain difficult to secure. According to the National Crime Records Bureau report, only 26 of 210 trials completed in 2024 ended in conviction; 176 resulted in acquittal and eight ended in discharge. The recorded conviction rate was 12.4%. At the year-end, 4,063 cases were still pending trial, with the pendency percentage at 94.9%.

Abetment, the Supreme Court has held, involves "instigation" that is direct, proximate and intentional. The core principle evolved through a consistent line of rulings is that mere harassment, humiliation, quarrels or even cruelty don't automatically prove or amount to abetment.

Proof rests on specific facts and circumstances of each case. Mens rea, Latin for a guilty mind, is crucial to prove the alleged instigation was intentional. SC has said mens rea cannot be presumed and must be established.

In a 2023 ruling, SC judge Justice B R Gavai said, "The close proximity should be such as to create a clear nexus between the act of instigation and the act of suicide." For an abetment of suicide charge to stand, the accused must be shown to have intended, through words or actions, to push the other person into a position that left them with no choice but to die by suicide, the court held while dropping the charge against a man whose estranged wife ended her life a month after he allegedly refused to let her return to their Convictions in abetment-related cases are difficult to secure. Here's a list of different legal outcomes in recent such cases:

A "direct influence or oblique impact" of the words of an accused on a person's mind is also not sufficient to constitute abetment of suicide, Bombay High Court Justices A S Chandurkar and Jitendra Jain held in 2024 while acquitting 8 Nashik family members.

Senior advocate Rajendra Shirodkar said in the IIT-B case, once the police probe is over and if the matter goes to trial, the court will ascertain whether there was abetment and instigation, its proximity in time to the suicide, and other surrounding factors.

Acquittals outnumber convictions, with four acquittals since 2021 in Mumbai, including in the 2013 suicide abetment case of actor Giah Khan. On April 28, 2023, a special CBI court acquitted actor Sooraj Pancholi, her then boyfriend, of abetment charges, citing paucity of evidence to prove direct instigation.

In multiple cases, the accused are on bail; in two cases, they are on pre-arrest bail while trial is pending.

Advocate Mubin Solkar said, "The Supreme Court has said factors like the victim's age, personality, upbringing, rural or urban background, education and self-confidence play a role in evaluating a case. Instigation involves goading, urging, provoking, inciting or encouraging a person to do an act. Importantly, words uttered in a fit of anger or emotion, without intention that their consequence should actually follow, would not necessarily constitute instigation."

Explaining that a "delicate analysis of human nature" is involved in such cases, Supreme Court Justices A M

Khanwilkar and Dinesh Maheshwari said in 2019, "Human mind could be affected and could react in myriad ways; and impact of one's action on the mind of another carries several imponderables. Similar actions are dealt with differently by different persons; and so far a particular person's reaction to any other human's action is concerned, there is no specific theorem or yardstick to estimate or assess the same."

Advocate Prashant Patil said to understand the law on abetment of suicide, one must first understand the definition of abetment. "Supreme Court judgments have consistently held that there must be intention, or mens rea, on the part of the accused. Individual sensitivity to a particular situation cannot, by itself, amount to instigation in law."

Failed kharif, rising heat trigger fodder crisis in Marathwada

Sandip.Dighe@timesofindia.com

Pune: Drought-hit Marathwada stares at a fodder crisis, a proverbial last straw for its famished livestock.

Kharif season's failure has led to an acute shortage of crop residue, which means farmers are now braced for trouble as fodder stocks in several districts of the Maharashtra arid zone dip below the state average.

"A farmer can survive one failed crop by borrowing money or waiting for the next season. But our cattle cannot wait. They need to be fed daily, and we need fodder for that," said Uddhav Ghodke, a farmer activist from Beed, one of the areas where the paucity is severe. As of Sept 30, the state had about 194.3 lakh tonnes of fodder, sufficient for an average of 188 days for its livestock population of nearly 2.78 crore. But the state animal husbandry department has flagged considerable regional variations.

In parts of Marathwada, the situation is precarious. Jalna, for instance, has about 63 days of fodder left. In Beed, it is 65 days. Hingoli has about 121 days, Nanded 125 days, while Chhatrapati Sambhaji-nagar division, as a whole, has fodder availability for only 113 days, the lowest among Maharashtra's divisions.

Experts warned that insufficient and poor quality fodder can directly impact livestock health, especially when animals are already under stress because of high daytime heat and water shortages. "When cattle do not receive adequate energy, protein, minerals and fibre, their body condition deteriorates and immunity can weaken. This becomes particularly stressful for lactating or pregnant animals, even young calves," a senior animal husbandry department official said. Prolonged nutritional stress, the official warned, could lead to reduced milk production, weight loss, reproductive problems and increased susceptibility to diseases.

In Marathwada, farmers are likely to face increasing pressure as the rabi season progresses and livestock begin to depend on stored fodder. Govt has identified 265 talukas where the situation is worrisome. "The department has begun distributing improved and hybrid fodder seeds with 100% subsidy. Individual farmers can receive assistance of up to Rs 4,000 for one hectare, while groups can receive up to Rs 20,000 for five hectares," Kiran Patil, the state's animal husbandry commissioner, told TOI.

Officials are also prioritising fodder cultivation. Jawar and bajra, which grow relatively quickly and require less rainfall, have been identified as suitable fodder crops in areas facing water stress. Other proposals include sourcing fodder from forests, unused govt land and pastures.

Manipur farmer abducted from field, found dead with hands tied Guwahati: The body of a 71-year-old Kuki farmer was recovered Sunday from a remote forest area in Manipur's Kangpokpi district with his hands tied, hours after suspected Naga militants allegedly abducted him from his field hut before setting it on fire Saturday. According to the local village council, Hemjang Haokip was likely tortured and beaten to death as his body bore injury marks.

Security forces recovered the body with the aid of sniffer dogs after Haokip's clothes were found near his field hut. The latest killing in the strife-torn state has further inflamed tensions between the Kuki and Naga communities.

The Kuki Youth Organisation, in a statement, said, "The circumstances and condition in which he was found is horrifying and have sent shockwaves throughout the Kuki community. The involvement of NSCN-IM and Tangkhul elements in this incident has further intensified the anger and anguish of the community." The outfit warned that the Kuki community would not remain silent. "We will mobilise every available community mechanism and take every necessary step within our capacity," it said.

On Saturday, a Kuki village authority had issued a 24-hour ultimatum to the state authorities, demanding Haokip's safe return by Sunday and warning of widespread protests if he was not found.

Army ambulance carrying soldier's remains crashes on UP e-way, 4 die

Sultanpur: An Army ambulance carrying the remains of a subedar-major collided with a stationary truck on the Purvanchal Expressway here on Sunday, leaving three of his family and the driver dead, police said.

The last remains was being brought to his native village in Deoria district in Uttar Pradesh from Chandigarh when the accident took place around 8 am near 79.6 km-mark of the expressway in the Haliyapur area, close to the Ayodhya-Sultanpur border, they said. Subedar Major Satyawar's son, brother and nephew and the ambulance driver died in the accident. Gaurav Singh (28), son of the soldier, and the ambulance driver, Jaspal (30), died on the spot, while Rajan Chaudhary (35), the soldier's brother, and nephew Ram Samujh Singh (40) succumbed to their injuries during treatment at a hospital in Pithla-Kumarganj in Ayodhya district, police said.

According to police, the ambulance went out of control and rammed into a truck parked on the side of the road. The impact severely damaged the ambulance. The four were accompanying the remains of Subedar Major Satyawar, a resident of Galiya Dudhaila village in the Rudrapur area in Deoria district.

Police took the bodies into custody and sent them for a post-mortem examination. The families of the deceased have been informed, officials said.

The remains of Subedar Major Satyawar have been kept at the Haliyapur police station premises pending further arrangements. Sultanpur SP Vineet Jaiswal said District Magistrate Indrajeet Singh and he visited the spot after receiving information about the accident.
