

Court rejects plea to defer arguments on charges

non-completion of investigation within the stipulated period is that the right to statutory bail gets accrued in favour of the accused," the court said.

"There is no provision (in the Act) which firstly prohibits the continuation of regular investigation beyond the period of two months and secondly, also from carrying out further investigation," it added.

The court also considered the question whether a supplementary chargesheet regarding further investigation is mandatorily required to be filed before commencement of trial.

It cited a 2009 verdict of the Supreme Court, according to which "carrying out a further investigation even after filing of the chargesheet is a statutory right of the police. (On the other hand) Rein-vestigation without prior permission is prohibited".

The court said in view of the new provisions of 193(9) of Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), 2023, it has been specifically provided that the investigating agency can carry out further investigation even after commencement of trial but with the permission of the court.

The BNSS section allows the police to conduct further investigation and submit supplementary reports after filing an initial chargesheet.

The court said that the counsel of the accused had raised another issue - whether the arguments on the point of charge needed to be deferred while further investigation was ongoing.

Noting the evidence before it, the court said the probe regarding the 13 accused persons is complete, and the further investigation pertaining to them is only with the filing of the Central Forensic Science Laboratory (CFSL) reports. "It is also clear that the further investigation is being carried out for ascertaining the role of other conspirators. Thus, it is prima facie clear that as far as these thirteen accused are concerned, the investigation qua them is complete; therefore, under these circumstances, the matter was proceeded further to hear the arguments on the point of charge on behalf of all these charge-sheeted accused persons," the court said.
