Former CJ's name 'misused' by special officer, rules Bom HC

Quashes Order To Withdraw List Of Trustees To Religious Trust In Nashik

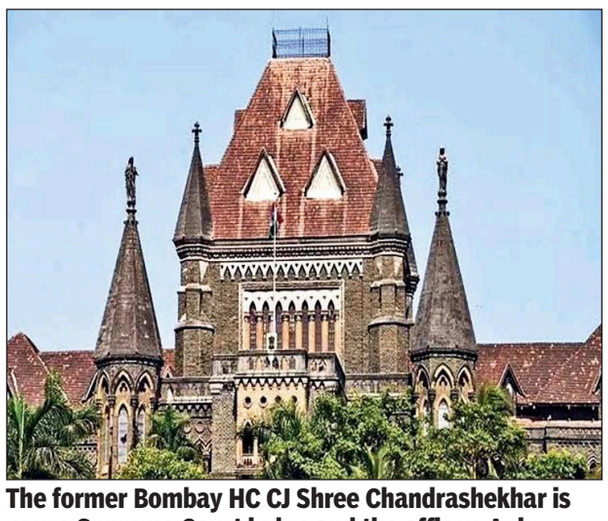

Rosy.Sequeira@timesofindia.com

Mumbai: Holding that the then special officer to former Chief Justice Shree Chandrashekhar had "misused" his name to direct withdrawal of a list of selected trustees to a religious trust in Nashik, Bombay HC has quashed and set aside a March 14 communication she had issued.

The former CJ is now a Supreme Court judge and the officer, Anju Shende, a principal district and sessions judge in Pune. Justices Girish Kulkarni and Neela Gokhale Thursday said they refuse to believe that the directions contained in the communication can, in law, be considered the then CJ's decision. They noted that the former CJ's name was misused "for reasons which are not coming forth on record".

The bench also quashed and set aside a consequential order of Srichand Jagamlani, then Nashik principal district and sessions judge, issued on March 14, withdrawing the list of trustees from the website and staying it.

The judgement was delivered on a petition by five selected/recommended candidates of Shree Saptashshrung Nivasini Devi Trust. They challenged Shende's March 14 communication, in which she stated that "in pursuance to the telephonic talk at the discretion of the chief justice of the Bombay HC, it is hereby conveyed that the list of recommended trustees... published by your office must be withdrawn from the website and kept on hold until further directions".

The former Bombay HC CJ Shree Chandrashekhar is now a Supreme Court judge and the officer, Anju Shende, a principal district and sessions judge in Pune

Jagamlani immediately issued an order saying the list was withdrawn and stayed till HC's further directions.

Senior advocate Anil Sakhare, for the petitioners, argued there is no provision in Maharashtra Public Trusts Act which allows HC, its CJ or the special officer to issue such a communication on the administrative side. Senior advocate Sharan Jagtiani, for Shende, said she would not defend the decision. However, he said, the decision was not taken unilaterally but on the directions of the then CJ. Sakhare said the selection process culminated in the final list of trustees published on March 12 after a detailed procedure was undertaken by Jagamlani, as the trust's ex officio chairman. It was at this juncture that Shende wrote to Jagamlani, he said.

Under the trust scheme, five of the seven trustees have to be appointed by the district judge. Shende's March 14 communication referred to the Maharashtra Public Trusts (Amendment) Ordinance, 2025, stating that Jagamlani should have consulted HC. However, HC judges noted that the relevant section by which the charity commissioner replaced the district judge to appoint trustees came into force only on May 1 and not when Shende issued the communication on March 14.

On Oct 27, the judges prima facie observed that as per established practice, an office submission is required to be placed before the CJ or the committee judges for approval before orders are communicated to the district judge. Jagtiani and advocate Rajesh Datar, for HC and district judge/chairman, said no such submission was placed before the then CJ and his approval was not taken before issuing the communication. The judges refused to accept Shende's contentions, made in her affidavit, "when everything is being attributed to" the then CJ in the absence of material in that regard. They said Shende "acted with gross impropriety and contrary to law". "The impugned communication cannot be sustained," they said.

Govt: Can amend privacy act, revoke law if needed

'Some Violative Sections Of Law Not For Journos'

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Section 7 of DPDP Act is for data fiduciaries like banks, telecom providers and insurance companies and media does not come within its ambit, I&B minister Ashwini Vaishnav said

New Delhi: Centre Friday said it is open to changing the rules of Digital Personal Data Protection (DPDP) Act and, if necessary, the law itself to eliminate the possibility of its application becoming an impediment for journalists and media houses.

Senior officials at the ministry for electronics & information technology said that sections of the law, which have been flagged as violative of the constitutional provisions guaranteeing freedom of speech and expression, are applicable to data fiduciaries and they are not for journalists.

"This law is only on data fiduciaries—those who keep and control data. Journalists and media houses do not come under this category," When told about the worry among journalists that Digital Personal Data Protection Act does not expressly exempt media houses, he said, "The rules can always be amended to allay any concern on that count. The rules have the same power as the law. If necessary, we can go a step further to change the law itself."

The Digital Personal Data Protection Act has been been justified in citing citizen's right to privacy, the need to protect data and in placing obligations on data fiduciaries.

Centre's reaction came days after the apex court agreed to examine a plea filed by Digital News Publishers Association (DNPA) which represents 21 of India's leading news media organisations and challenged the validity of various provisions of the act and rules framed under it.

The association alleged that the law was violative of the fundamental right to freedom of speech and expression and threatened the full spectrum of journalistic activity.

"It is prayed that Sections 7, 17(2), 18, 19, 27, 29, 36, 37, 44(3) of DPDP Act and Rules 16, 17, and 23 of DPDP Rules framed under Section 40 be declared void to the extent they are in contravention of fundamental rights of the Constitution," said the petition."... The sections mentioned above fail to provide any exemption in favour of journalistic activity as a distinct class of processing, entitled to constitutional protection under Article 14 and 19(1)(a) of the Constitution and threaten the full spectrum of journalistic activity carried out by journalists, ground reporters, citizens, whistleblowers, RTI activists, and other stakeholders, and strikes at the core of our democratic framework and runs contrary to the basic tenets of the Constitution," the petition said and added that publishers, editors, reporters and correspondents will be brought within a regime of notice and prior consent, compelled erasure and verifiable consent, obligations that cannot be reconciled with the ordinary functioning of the Press.

Officials said that the the concern about the DPDP act becoming an impediment for journalists will be addressed by carving out exemptions for them in the rules and, if necessary, in the law itself.

Akhilesh takes swipe at Shah over UCC promise

Akhilesh Yadav pays tribute to freedom fighter Acharya Narendra Dev on his 137th birth anniversary at his memorial in Lucknow, Saturday

Lucknow: SP chief Akhilesh Yadav Friday took a dig at Union home minister Amit Shah over the promise to implement the Uniform Civil Code (UCC) in UP if BJP returns to office, saying the announcement was coming too late.

"Badi der kar di meherban aate-aate," he quipped in a veiled swipe at BJP for not bringing in UCC despite governing the state for two consecutive terms and making the announcement at a time when the assembly elections are approaching.

He also accused CM Yogi Adityanath of securing BJP's victory in the Gorakhpur-Faizabad teachers' constituency at the cost of the party losing both MLC seats in Varanasi.

In another pointed response, Yadav targeted the Yogi Adityanath govt over its recently revised guidelines governing eligibility for govt jobs.

Bihar tells school staffers to dress formal, bars DJs

Patna: Bihar education minister Mithlesh Tiwary Saturday said his department has directed all educational institutes to strictly enforce a formal dress code for teachers and non-teaching staff, while expressing concern over the use of DJ during entertainment programmes on campus.

In a letter issued Friday, education department director (administration) Vijay Kumar Pandey asked all district officers to ensure that staff attend schools in formal attire during teaching and office hours.

Tiwary said, "I asked officials to ensure that all schools and other educational institutes in the state strictly follow a formal dress code for teachers and non-teaching staff. Besides, the use of DJ and disco during entertainment activities on campus is not permitted."

There must be a sense of discipline within the school premises, he said. "As the saying goes 'Vidya Dadati Vinayam' (education instils humility), a teacher's behaviour, conduct and attire matter greatly to students. They look at their teachers as role models," Tiwary said.

The letter said instructions had earlier been issued by the department to ensure dignified conduct and disciplined behaviour during activities in schools and other educational institutes. "However, reports received from various sources indicate that these instructions are not being strictly followed on a large scale. This is a matter of serious concern," the education department said in the letter to district officers. There are reports that teachers and non-teaching staff come to schools in casual dresses, such as wearing jeans and T-shirts, despite earlier instructions, it said.

The department also flagged concerns over the use of DJ in programmes on school premises, saying such activities undermine the dignity of an educational institute and the teaching profession. Only disciplined and dignified programmes, organised on special occasions in accordance with the academic calendar, are permissible, it said. PTI

HC: Abusive, defamatory or caste-based attack on judge not free speech

Sureshkumar.K
@timesofindia.com

Chennai: Coordinated actions that use abusive, defamatory or caste-based language to attack a sitting judge do not fall under protected free speech, the Madras high court has said, adding: "There is a clear legal line between criticising a legal conclusion and attacking a judge who authored it."

The court also directed Tamil Nadu Police not to grant permission for any public gathering or march that aims to personally target, defame or intimidate a sitting judge.

The first bench of Chief Justice Sushrut Arvind Dharmadhikari and Justice G Arul Murugan passed the orders on Friday on a PIL moved by R Karthikeyan seeking to restrain organisations, including Tamil Nadu Thowheed Jamaath and Tamil Nadu Muslim Munnetra Kazhagam, from organising demonstrations relating to judicial proceedings and personally targeting constitutional courts and sitting judges. The bench added: "If a permitted assembly turns into a personal attack, the officers concerned shall end the event immediately and take appropriate legal action."

The dispute traces back to a judgement delivered on June 25 by a Madurai bench of the court which declared as unconstitutional a 2024 GO passed by Tamil Nadu's govt that allowed individuals who converted to Islam from Backward Classes, Most Backward Classes, Denotified Communities, or Scheduled Castes to claim the state's 3.5% reservation for Backward Class (Muslim) communities.

Over 100 EWS candidates allotted open PG seats in pvt colleges with fees up to ₹2cr

Anuja.Jaiswal@timesofindia.com

New Delhi: More than 100 candidates from the economically weaker section (EWS) category have been allotted postgraduate medical seats in the open category under the self-financed quota in private colleges, where tuition fee for some courses can be up to Rs 2.1 crore over three years.

The allotments were made in the first round of NEET-PG 2026 counselling, according to the seat allotment list. The list records the candidates' category as EWS while the allotted seat category was open and the quota was mentioned self-financed merit seat.

Among those allotted seats was a candidate with NEET-PG rank of 79,396, who secured MS obstetrics and gynaecology at Padmashree Dr DY Patil Medical College, Navi Mumbai, where the three-year tuition is around Rs 2 crore. Another candidate, ranked 71,263, was allotted MD radio-diagnosis at Raja Rajeswari Medical College, Bengaluru, where the three-year tuition is around Rs 1.8 crore. Candidates had listed these colleges and courses in their counselling choices and were allotted seats based on their preferences and rank. They can retain the seat, seek an upgrade or exit.

A person familiar with NEET-PG counselling said candidates may apply under EWS category hoping to secure a clinical seat in a govt medical college through reservation. However, if their rank is not competitive enough for such a seat, some may opt for self-financed seats in private colleges.

NEET-PG qualification is mandatory, but for self-financed seats, the ability to pay matters more than rank, said a senior faculty member at a govt medical college.The faculty member also pointed out that EWS eligibility is based on an annual family income of less than Rs 8 lakh. "When a candidate claiming EWS status takes admission to a self-financed medical seat where the three-year course fee can run into crores of rupees, it raises questions about the verification of EWS certificate and a candidate's financial eligibility. The circumstances warrant closer scrutiny, though the high fee by itself does not establish any ineligibility or wrongdoing," the faculty member said. The financial burden of PG medical education in private colleges can be substantial. Official fee schedules show that annual tuition for some MD/MS courses can reach Rs 60-70 lakh, taking the three-year tuition bill to Rs 1.8-2.1 crore, excluding hostel and other charges.

For instance, Sri Siddhartha Medical College's 2025-26 fee schedule lists annual tuition of Rs 60 lakh for MD paediatrics, amounting to Rs 1.8 crore over three years at that rate. These figures relate to different academic years and are not confirmed 2026-27 fees.

The colleges where such allotments were made include Mahatma Gandhi Medical College and Research Institute, Pondicherry; Meenakshi Medical College, Kanchipuram; Bharati Vidyapeeth Medical College, Pune; Sri Devaraj Urs Medical College, Kolar; Santosh Medical College, Ghaziabad among others.
