Battery storage must for new solar projects over 1 MW

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chennai

EVERY new solar project of 1 MW and above in the state will now have to install battery storage, under the Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) Policy 2026 launched by Electricity and Law Minister CTR Nirmal Kumar at the Tamil Nadu Electricity Board headquarters in Chennai on Tuesday. The policy looks to create 10 GWh of storage capacity by 2029 to improve grid stability, ensure reliable supply during peak hours and make better use of solar and wind power.

New solar projects must set up storage equal to at least 10% of their installed capacity, capable of discharging for four hours. The requirement applies to projects that apply on or after the policy's notification date and those commissioned from April 1, 2027. New substations that pool renewable power must have standalone battery storage of at least 10% of their sanctioned capacity, while existing ones must add 5% by 2027-28 and another 5% by 2028-29. The minister said the state is unable to utilise around 3,000-4,000 MW of solar power during the day.

TNPDCL will procure 2,500 MW (10,000 MWh) of battery storage in the first phase through competitive bidding, with the prices subject to approval by the Tamil Nadu Electricity Regulatory Commission. Tamil Nadu Green Energy Corporation Ltd (TNGECL) will be the nodal agency for implementing the policy. The minister said surplus power generated during the day could be stored and used when demand peaks. The policy covers standalone storage projects, storage integrated with solar and wind projects, and facilities supporting transmission and distribution networks.

Lift operator gets trapped in Ariyalur GMCH lift, rescued

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Ariyalur

A 38-year-old differently-abled lift operator was rescued by firefighters after he got trapped inside a lift at the Government Medical College Hospital in Ariyalur on Tuesday.

C Nithyanatham (38), a differently-abled lift operator from Mangalam village in Perambalur, was trapped and rescued. The hospital has five lifts, one of which had remained unused for some time. Following a request from the hospital administration, the Public Works Department (PWD) recently carried out repair work on the lift. Officials subsequently advised the hospital management to test its functioning before putting it into regular use, according to official sources. As part of the inspection process, Nithyanantham had been operating the lift without passengers for the past two days.

On Tuesday morning, while checking the lift's operation between the ground floor and the upper floors, Nithyanatham encountered an unexpected technical malfunction. When the lift was travelling down from the fifth floor towards the fourth floor, it suddenly stopped midway, trapping him inside.

Realising that the lift was not moving, Nithyanatham immediately alerted the hospital's technical staff over mobile phone. However, despite repeated efforts, the technical team was unable to bring the lift down. Subsequently, the hospital authorities alerted the fire and rescue personnel from Ariyalur. After approximately 30 minutes of effort, a team of firefighters safely rescued Nithyanatham from the stranded lift. Following the incident, hospital staff started checking the lift to find and fix the problem.

It may be noted that the Government Medical College Hospital in Ariyalur was constructed at ₹347 crore and fully inaugurated in March 2023. The five-storey hospital has a capacity of 700 beds and is equipped with facilities to treat 450 inpatients and 1,800 outpatients daily.

Light rain likely in Chennai for 2 days

RAINFALL is expected to intensify over southern Tamil Nadu from November 5, when heavy rain is likely in Theni, Dindigul and Madurai districts. Thunderstorms and lightning are likely at isolated places across Tamil Nadu, Pondicherry, and Karaikal until November 7.

On Tuesday, Cuddalore ARG recorded the highest rainfall in the state at 88.4 mm in the 24 hours ending at 8.30 am. In Chennai, light to moderate rain accompanied by thunderstorms and lightning is likely in some areas for the next two days.

3 sites in K'kurichi with rock painitings

"A smaller deer has also been depicted above and to the right of the larger deer. Other figures surrounding the paintings are not clearly visible," he added.

The researcher said the depiction helped them establish details of hunting practices during the period, including the possible use of weapons and the manner in which prehistoric humans hunted deer.

Vijayrangam and Immanuel said they estimated the paintings to be around 5,000 years old, based on their structure and style. Having studied similar rock paintings for several years, they identified the features as belonging to the Neolithic period.

However, art historian K T Gandhirajan of Chennai said the paintings could be attributed to the Late Neolithic period. "It is very rare to find paintings executed with such precision. The deer has been depicted clearly, with its antlers also distinctly visible. Another deer can be seen in the background in outline form. The human figure found nearby may have been painted during a later period," he said.

Immanuel said pottery sherds were also found scattered at various locations around the hillock. The fragments were black-and-red and black in colour, and the researchers suspected that they could belong to the same period as the rock paintings. Such archaeological evidence had been found in this area for the first time, he added.

The findings indicated that a human civilisation had existed in the area several thousand years ago, Immanuel said.

With this discovery, the number of sites with rock paintings in Kallakurichi district has risen to three. Similar paintings were found earlier at sites in the Kalvarayan Hills and Padiyandhal in the district, sources added.

Councillor's invective can't shake CMO: HC

"THE measure of a police force is not how it treats the eminent when the press is watching but how it treats the unknown when nobody is," the judge remarked.

Referring to the case against the DMK councillor, the judge said those who held high office in a republic were liable to be "criticised, lampooned and not rarely, abused".

"The office (of CM) is not so fragile that a ward councillor's invective at a party meeting can shake it, and the state diminishes the office it claims to protect when it answers words of that kind with the machinery of arrest," he said.

Justice Ramesh said a government, with self-confidence, met criticism with argument, mockery with performance, and abuse — where it truly crossed the line — with the remedy of the law of defamation.

Magnanimity towards political speech was not a grace the state could extend or withhold, but it was what the Constitution exacted of those who held power over their critics, the judge said.

TN, Centre in touch with Nepal govt to bring back body to Chennai

Continued from page 1: Tamil Vasanth's annual trip to India was just a month away. Roughly 12,000 km away in Canada, Vasanth's wife, Anal Chauhan, and their 12-year-old son, Vivaan, were also left in shock. "Vasanth spoke to his parents on Monday morning and said he would call them after returning to Canada because the mobile network in Nepal was poor. That was the last time he spoke to them," Kishore Kumar, a family friend, told TNIE. Vasanth, the elder of Balaramanadu's two sons, worked in Bengaluru before moving to Canada eight years ago. Vasanth's brother lives in the UK. "The Embassy of India in Kathmandu expresses its deepest condolences on the unfortunate demise of an Indian national in a collision between two helicopters in the Solukhumbu district," the Indian Embassy in Nepal said in a post on X. Speaking to TNIE, a Non-Resident Tamils Welfare Department official said the Tamil Nadu government and Indian authorities are in touch with the Nepal government to expedite bringing Vasanth's mortal remains to Chennai. The Everest base camp trek is popular during the fall season, right after the rainy season and before the harsh winter months. Aircraft were ferrying trekkers who had been hiking up to Everest base camp during Nepal's popular trekking season. Since there are no roads on Everest, helicopters are the only way to bring down trekkers who become sick or exhausted. (With agency inputs)
