Adarsh Samaj Samiti India Celebrated Children's Day

PRABHAT HEADLINE

Surajgarh. At the office of Adarsh Samaj Samiti India, the birthday of great freedom fighter, builder of modern India and first Prime Minister of the country, Bharat Ratna Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru was celebrated as Children's Day. Under the chairmanship of committee president Dharampal Gandhi, floral tributes were offered to the portrait of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and homage was paid to him. In the programme, his contribution in the freedom movement and nation building was remembered. Dharampal Gandhi, throwing light on the life of Pandit Nehru, said that he had an important role in the freedom movement.

After independence, he made significant contribution in building modern India, education, science, industrial development and strengthening democratic institutions. In the programme, child artist Soumya Sharma won the hearts of the people present by giving a cultural presentation. Khushi Sharma and Anamika Sharma were presented books 'Inquilab' and 'Azadi Ki Rahon Mein' written by writer Dharampal Gandhi on the freedom struggle. On this occasion, Dr. Pritam Singh Khugai, Khushi Sharma Neemkathana, Anamika Sharma, Krishna, Soumya Sharma, Sunil Gandhi, Bhavika Gandhi were present.

Use Time in Youth to Acquire Knowledge: Sumit Singh

Jhunjhunu. Students and teachers collectively celebrated Children's Day with enthusiasm and fanfare at Singhania University. Registrar Sumit Singh called upon the students to use their time in youth to acquire knowledge. He said, "Even though India may have been considered the 'Golden Bird' in earlier times, even at present there is no dearth of skills in it and it is considered a country with 'Golden Talents', whether it is IT or the economy sector." Dean of School of Journalism and Mass Communication Prof. Manoj Varghese, in his welcome speech, recalled the transition period of our country from 'Modern India' to 'New India'. He told the audience about the country's space mission, mini-sun project and other successful projects in which our scientists are engaged. He said India is the largest democracy on earth, the fastest growing major economy and the country with the youngest population in the world. Academic Director Dr. S. K. Dubey mentioned that India has developed a lot from begging for rice to exporting many such commodities to other parts of the country. Especially during Covid, we reached more than 100 countries with vaccines. Dr. Arvind Kumar and Dr. Sunil Chaturvedi presented special songs. Ms. Meenu conducted the programme and Ms. Jyoti Rani expressed thanks.

Visa matters are sovereign: MEA responds after 115 foreign speakers denied nod for Congress event

New Delhi, Agency: The ministry of external affairs (MEA) on Friday defended India's visa decisions, saying these are "sovereign functions" of every government. The response came amid allegations that more than 100 foreign speakers invited to the Congress-organised Bharat Summit in Hyderabad were denied entry into India or had their visas cancelled.

"I would like to say, and all of you are aware, that visa matters are sovereign functions of any country or any government. So that is what I have to say," MEA spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal said during his the bi-weekly media briefing.

The MEA's response came amid allegations by Congress leaders that several foreign delegates who had received prior clearance from the ministry were subsequently denied entry into India or had their visas revoked. The opposition has alleged that the decisions were taken following instructions from the Union ministry of home affairs (MHA). The two-day Bharat Summit 2026 is being held in Hyderabad on November 13 and 14, bringing together around 1,000 delegates, policymakers and thinkers from 70 countries. Organised by the Congress and the Telangana government, the summit features discussions on global geopolitics, democracy, climate change, progressive politics.

Row erupts over foreign medicos 'MD Physician' title

NEW DELHI: An 'MD' title after a doctor's name usually signals a postgraduate medical qualification in India. But for some foreign medical graduates, MD (Physician) is the title of their primary medical degree.

This difference has triggered a dispute over professional titles, with doctors warning that patients could be misled and foreign medical graduates arguing their qualifications are officially recognised.

Dr Dhruv Chauhan, national spokesperson for Junior Doctors' Network (JDN) of Indian Medical Association, flagged the issue in a post on X, alleging some doctors misuse the 'MD' degree title awarded in foreign countries, where it may denote a primary medical qualification equivalent to MBBS in India.

He said that using it in professional titles and online biographies could mislead patients and even other doctors, and warned of possible legal consequences. He also advised doctors against such representations.

1 stenographer, 4,500 cases: HC seeks explanation over delay in pronouncing order

New Delhi, Agency: Delhi High Court has directed its registry to seek explanations from a trial court judge, the chief judicial magistrate (CJM) and the district judge concerned over the failure to pronounce an order that was pending since April 22, 2026.

Taking note of the remarks in the trial court's order sheets, Justice Manmeet Pritam Singh Arora sought clarification on the staff shortage and backlog of over 4,500 cases, which were cited to explain the delay.

The matter stems from a petition filed by Pradeep Bansal and others under Article 227 of the Constitution, seeking time-bound disposal of an application dated April 8, 2024. The application seeks vacation of an interim stay granted on Dec 1, 2023, in a domestic violence complaint pending before a judicial magistrate, first class, in north Delhi.

Justice Arora noted that arguments on the application were completed on Jan 6, 2026, but the trial court was yet to pronounce its order. The matter has remained pending for pronouncement since April 22 and has been deferred four times, most recently on Oct 27. After examining the trial court's order sheets, the high court observed that they did not disclose any clear reason for the prolonged delay. What particularly caught the judge's attention, however, were repeated references to administrative constraints in the trial court's proceedings.

One of the order sheets recorded: "This court is working with only one stenographer and having pendency of more than 4,500 cases.

Breakthrough HIV drug sees 18 patent filings, may delay affordable generics

New Delhi, Agency: An unusually high 18 patent applications filed in India for lenacapavir, a breakthrough HIV therapy, have raised concerns that these could prolong market exclusivity, delay affordable generics, keep prices high and restrict patient access. Contesting the move, patient groups and civil society have filed opposition with the regulatory authorities, arguing the applications lack novelty and inventive steps. Lenacapavir, a long-acting injectable, administered twice yearly for both HIV prevention and treatment, a medicine designated as essential by WHO. Last year, US FDA approved Gilead Sciences' lenacapavir as the first and only twice-yearly injectable pre-exposure prophylaxis to reduce sexually acquired HIV. Gilead has filed at least 18 patent pleas till date in India, covering different aspects of it, including the base compound, salt forms, formulations, dosing regimens, compositions, and methods of use.

Urea overuse in 169 dists raises red flags, CAG probing diversion

New Delhi, Agency: CAG has initiated an all-India performance audit of fertiliser subsidy, specifically to look into the alleged diversion of subsidised urea in at least 169 districts across a few states, including the possibility of diversion outside the country. The audit, which started in May this year, is likely to be completed by mid-2027 to be tabled by the winter session of Parliament.

Govt spends more than Rs 2 lakh crore annually on the subsidised urea, and their overconsumption above the national and state average in some districts has raised concerns within govt. CAG will assess the demand and efficiency of the urea subsidy framework, which is also the terms of reference of the audit.

The selected 169 districts to be assessed for alleged diversion, include 149 initially chosen by CAG based on their consumption pattern, which were above the state and national average. Twenty other districts were added later after recommendation from the Centre to examine their consumption pattern. The audit will look into the fertiliser movement mechanism, their transportation arrangements, freight subsidy and associated monitoring and control system.

This integrated audit approaches a wider cooperation and participation from different govt departments, like the GST network, agriculture ministry, railways and others, who will assist the auditors in its assessment of the fertiliser control system and the efficacy of the regulators.

The finance ministry recently flagged the possibility of diversion of urea based on e-way bills as it found trucks were taking detours or making multiple stops.
