Eisenkot gets 67 nods but Herzog seeks more talks

Liberman signals ultra-Orthodox compromise while Israel prez cites vetoes

JERUSALEM

ISRAELI President Isaac Herzog said on Friday that he would hold further talks with party leaders before deciding who can form the next government, despite opposition leader Gadi Eisenkot receiving the backing of 67 lawmakers, The Times of Israel reported.

Herzog said representatives of factions totaling 67 lawmakers had recommended Eisenkot, while factions totaling 46 backed Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. But he said the outcome was not as clear-cut as the numbers suggested, citing "mutual vetoes" between and within the political blocs.

Herzog said he would seek to clarify the situation "directly and quickly" through personal talks with some party leaders before assigning the mandate to form a government on Sunday. A potential new route emerged Friday after Yisrael Beytenu leader Avigdor Liberman signalled he was willing to compromise on his long-standing opposition to working with ultra-Orthodox Jewish parties, AFP reported.

Israeli President Isaac Herzog

Liberman, who has campaigned against exemptions from Israel's mandatory military service for the ultra-Orthodox, said removing Netanyahu and avoiding new elections were among the most important goals.

"It is time to compromise and understand that trying to have everything risks getting nothing," Liberman said.

United Torah Judaism, which has seven seats, refused to recommend Netanyahu to Herzog but did not endorse Eisenkot.

Its decision could leave room for a future coalition arrangement. UTJ and the other ultra-Orthodox party, Shas, together hold 13 seats, potentially giving Eisenkot a crucial path to power if they can be brought into an alliance. UTJ lawmaker Yaakov Asher welcomed Liberman's shift, saying the party's rabbis would assess any formal proposal. Agencies

Trump, Qatar emir push to avert Iran war

WASHINGTON/TEHRAN

US President Donald Trump has discussed efforts to de-escalate tensions in the West Asia in a telephone call with Qatar's emir as the region remained on edge over the possibility of renewed US military action against Iran.

Meanwhile, Iran's foreign minister held discussions with his Egyptian counterpart, part of an ongoing flurry of diplomacy as Iran's neighbors in the region push for a negotiated settlement rather than a new round of war. The call between Trump and Qatar's Emir Sheik Tamim bin Hamad al Thani centered on international efforts to end tensions, according to a statement from the Qatari ruler's office. The two discussed Qatar's efforts aimed at reaching "an agreement that ends the crisis and achieves security and stability in the region." AP

PM's resignation rejected, time for budget talks given

BRUSSELS

BELGIUM's King Philippe on Friday rejected the resignation of Prime Minister Bart De Wever and sent him and the governing coalition back to work on a long-running crisis over the country's budget.

De Wever had handed in his resignation on Monday after budget talks broke down. But the king, who oversees the formation of national governments, said he was "withholding his decision" on whether to approve. "All of them reaffirmed their determination to reach an agreement on a sound budgetary path for the next three years," the Royal Palace said in a statement. AP
