Tower in Riyadh hit again as Iran rejects US talks

Saudi's tallest skyscraper, struck in recent days, is among several high-profile targets hit

RIYADH

THE Saudi capital's tallest skyscraper was struck for the second time in days on Tuesday, witnesses told AFP, as the coalition fighting Yemen's Houthis denounced a "terrorist attack". Three separate witnesses said the strike targeted the 80-storey Public Investment Fund Tower, which houses the kingdom's sovereign wealth fund and dominates Riyadh's King Abdullah Financial District (KAFD).

The building, which was also attacked last Thursday, is one of several high-profile targets hit since hostilities with the Iran-backed Houthis restarted in July. "One of the towers in the financial centre was targeted in a cowardly terrorist attack," coalition spokesperson Turki al-Malki said in a social media post, without naming the building. "The relevant authorities are currently inspecting the attack site."

Iran rules out talks with US until its 7 conditions are met

Iran's chief negotiator and parliament speaker Mohammad Bagher Qalibaf said on Tuesday that Tehran wouldn't negotiate with the US. "until Iran's seven conditions are met," according to Iranian state television. Iranian authorities haven't publicly stated what those conditions are. But Iranian state media have said they include the lifting of sanctions, the ending of the US naval blockade of Iranian ports and the release of seized Iranian assets.

He also warned that Iran would "shift the geographical scope of the conflict should the enemy make a mistake."

3 oil tankers on fire after hitting mines in Hormuz

Meanwhile, Iran's Revolutionary Guard said on Tuesday that three oil tankers hit naval mines for violating regulations governing passage through the Strait of Hormuz.

The Guard's navy said the vessels ignored maritime warnings and unauthorised routes, despite US aerial escort, and were "engulfed in flames" after striking the mines. AFP

UK sanctions Houthis, 4 leaders

LONDON: Britain sanctioned Yemen's Iran-backed Houthis and four senior officials over attacks destabilising the West Asia. The measures include asset freezes and travel bans. London accused the group of targeting Saudi infrastructure and disrupting global supply chains, as renewed fighting continues.

Nvidia staff chant, holler and hug at Huang's return

PARIS

Nvidia staff have given their returning boss Jensen Huang a rapturous welcome, chanting his name and crowding around as the AI pioneer told them: "I'm going to be a better CEO the second time around."

Huang resigned last week after revelations of extramarital affairs -- two reportedly with Nvidia staff who reported to him and one with a client who is suspected of being a Chinese spy aiming to get around US trade sanctions. The firm's board had said last week that it had no plans to reinstate him, but US President Donald Trump later said he had personally intervened to get them to hire him back.

"I want to thank all of you," Huang -- forgoing one of his signature black leather jackets -- said in videos posted on social media Monday that AFP has not been able to verify.

"I'm terribly sorry for putting you through all of this. I've made some very terrible mistakes, and I'm going to work on coming back," he said.

One video shows a staff member rushing up to hug him, burying her head in his shoulder. As the crowd chants "Jensen! Jensen! Jensen!", he continued: "Thank you all for the second chance. I'm going to be a better CEO the second time around."

Huang still faces an internal inquiry into his behaviour, and has also been summoned to appear before Congress next month in hearings and committees. His company is also under investigation by regulators.

But after Trump's intervention, the effectiveness of those probes is now in question.

Nvidia, the central player in the AI economy, saw its share price crater after Huang left the company, throwing the rest of the industry into turmoil and prompting loud calls for his return from friends including Elon Musk. The firm's share price rocketed more than 30 percent on Monday before falling back in pre-market deals on Tuesday. AFP

Trump's Nvidia stake may gain $15 million

WASHINGTON: Jensen Huang's return as Nvidia CEO sent the chipmaker's shares soaring more than 30%, potentially adding up to $15 million to US President Donald Trump's holdings, the Financial Times said. Trump may have held up to 370,000 Nvidia shares as of September 30, based on financial disclosures. Trump said he had spoken directly with Nvidia's board about Huang's reinstatement. Democratic Senator Ruben Gallego called for scrutiny of Trump's trades ahead of the announcement, raising questions over whether any transactions occurred before Nvidia announced Huang's return.

Brits book most of Children's Booker

LONDON

BRITISH authors dominate the inaugural Children's Booker Prize 2027 shortlist unveiled on Tuesday, with a winner to be picked from the "Great Eight" books by a mixed panel of adult and children judges.

British Pakistani author Iqbal Hussain is among those shortlisted, while British author Guy Bass is paired with illustrator David Roberts. British writer-illustrator duo Liz Hyder and Tom de Freston are also in the running. Catherine Bruton and Mikey Please complete the UK line-up.

Irish British authors Eoin Colfer and Andrew Donkin is shortlisted along with Italian illustrator Giovanni Rigano, while Irish author Jessica Scott-Whyte is in the running with British illustrator Becka Moor. Australian author Shaun Tan completes the international line-up.

British Indian judge Sanchita Basu De Sarkar, who owns the award-winning Children's Bookshop in Muswell Hill, north London, is among the adult judges, alongside UK Children's Laureate Frank Cottrell-Boyce and actor Lolly Adefope.

Four child judges were chosen through a UK-wide competition that received more than 4,000 entries. They will join the adult panel in selecting the winner, putting young readers directly at the heart of the new prize. The shortlist reflects the international reach of children's literature.

The panel is headed by the first Children's Booker Prize judging process, created specifically to recognise outstanding books written for young readers. PTI

Pope Francis' diary reveals visions of devil, spiritual crisis

VATICAN CITY

POPE Francis saw the "gates of hell" when he realised the depths of the clergy sexual abuse scandal and experienced mystical visions of the devil throughout his ministry, according to excerpts of his personal diary published on Tuesday by the Vatican.

"The Private Diary of Pope Francis" also reveals the Argentine pope suffered a profound spiritual crisis in 2021-22, connected to his own temptations to exercise power omnipotently. He overcame the crisis by entrusting himself entirely to God's mercy. The most moving sections are Francis' revelations of his own spiritual torments and what he described as encounters with the devil — visceral, tangible and seemingly terrifying visions.

Two occurred in Buenos Aires, and the third after his disastrous 2018 Chile trip. In a January 24, 2021, entry, Francis said he saw the devil after returning to Rome, who told him: "Now I've gotten everything I wanted." AP
